THE LATE EMPEROR FREDERICK III.

FUNERAL SERVICES IN SYDNEY.

The death of the Emperor Frederick III. of Germany was the subject of touching references in many of the churches in Sydney yesterday. In every case testimony was borne to the manly characteristics of the deceased monarch, and high praise was paid to the devotion which the Emperor had always shown in promoting the advancement of the German people, while argumentative proof was adduced to show the felicity which had marked his domestic relations. At the Bourke-street Wesleyan Church, at the evening service, the Rev. R. Dyson preached on "The lessons from the life of the late Emperor." The musical portion of the service included the solo from the Messiah, "I know that my Redeemer liveth;" Dr. Stainer's anthem, "What are these arrayed in white robes;" and Somerset's beautiful setting of "There is a green hill far away." At the Central Methodist Mission, Kent-street, the Rev. J. A. Browning selected the death of the Emperor as the subject for his sermon, and upon the words "Death in a Palace," he delivered a touching address. The Rev. Warlow Davies, preaching in the Congregational Church, Newtown, in the evening, made special reference to the death of the Emperor. The evening service at the Glebe Congregational Church, St. John's-road, was conducted by the Rev. T. E. Owens-Mell. It partook of the nature of a memorial service, with a sermon bearing on the lessons of the life of the late Emperor. The Rev. H. T. Robjohns, preaching in the Ocean-street Congregational Church, Woollahra, founded a special sermon on the subject of the death of the Emperor. Rev. W. E. H. Percival, at St. Philip's Church, Church-hill, at the evening service preached upon the subject of "Christianity and Government," and made special allusion to the death of the late Emperor; and the Rev. J. W. Inglis, preaching in St. Stephen's Church, Phillip-street, founded an impressive address upon "Lessons from the life of the Emperor Frederick III."

THE GERMAN SERVICE.

The scene presented in the Pitt-street Congregational Church yesterday afternoon was strikingly impressive. For the occasion the edifice had been given up to the German residents of Sydney, that they might gather to their full number and bear reverential homage to the memory of their "beloved Fritz," the Emperor Frederick III. There must have been fully 3000 persons present. Among them were—Sir Henry Parkes, the Premier; Hon. J. Sutherland, Minister for Works; Hon. C. J. Roberts, Postmaster-General; Hon. J. Inglis, Minister for Education; Hon. J. F. Burns, Colonial Treasurer; Hon. W. Clarke, Minister for Justice; Sir F. M. Darley, Chief Justice; Sir Patrick Jennings, the Mayor of Sydney, Major-General Richardson, Major Taunton, German Consul Feldbram, Prussian Consul Bartels, Russian Consul Paul, Italian Consul Marano, Portuguese Consul E. G. Smith, American Consul Griffin, Austrian Consul Lichner, and many others of the principal residents of Sydney. So great was the desire for admission, that owing to the limit of space, there must have been more than 2000 persons unable to gain access to the precincts of the edifice. But despite the great concourse of people, and the disappointment which so many experienced, there was a display of silent reverence which was remarkable. Within the interior of the church a death-like stillness prevailed when the organ broke forth with the peculiarly plaintive chords of the "Dead March" in "Saul." But who could not but feel the impressive solemnity of such a gathering. The surroundings were such that the message of death met the gaze at every turn. Where was want to lower the pulpit there now appeared a strangely beautiful sombre mass. It rose like the frontal ornament to a grand mausoleum, adorned in a manner which seemed to speak with pathetic force. Stretching along the base were festoons, chaste in their white beauty. Wreaths of spotless flowers and exotic plants of varied hue were distributed in such a manner that they blended with graceful effect, while in a centrepiece and support to this portion of the device there was set in bold prominence a velvet shield. This was outlined by beautiful flowers, and in the centre was a wreath of buds which served as an emblematic halo to the German colours. Above these was another design of great beauty. Immortelles, intermingled with lilies, festooned and graced a pair of deep black curtains carelessly drawn aside to disclose the manly features of the monarch whose death the congregation had met to mourn. Many of those who looked upon that genial face could not but have had forced upon them the rapid march of contemporary history. It was but fourteen weeks since they met in that church to mark the "home-going" of Kaiser William, and now they had assembled to commemorate the death of that great man's son. The sentiments employed to mark the two events were in many respects painfully similar, but there was this distinction. At the previous service the galleries were heavily draped with velvet and crape, now there was a rift in the sombre hangings, and intersecting the drapery there was a strip of fluted white "llama." In this change there was silently told the sad history of the Emperor Frederick—he had been all too short. The notes of the "Dead March" ceased, and the choir then rose and with subdued unaccompanied harmony they filled the building. The solemn ritual progressed with unbroken evenness until Herr Pastor Schenck commenced his funeral oration. He told of the dead and the living, of life and death, and with uplifted hands and dramatic action he extolled the grandeur of the life of Frederick III.

The musical portion of the service was no less well performed than it was admirably arranged. As on the former occasion, Mr. Sidney Moss was conductor, having a compact orchestra, including Messrs. Rice, Allpress, Herbert Rice, Schmeditschek, Winckelmann, Summerhayes, Walrabe, Taylor, &c. As solo singers there were Miss Frances Saville and Mr. Halliwell, with also a quartette composed of Misses Thompson and Cromach and Messrs. W. Caley and John Bushelle. Mr. Kent, the organist of the church, presided at his instrument, and the choral music was rendered by a well-balanced choir of upwards of 80 voices, chiefly members of the Philharmonic Society. Thus there was ample material for a more than ordinarily good performance of what was required, and the selections were all excellent and appropriate. The opening number was of course the standard "Dead March" of Handel, the simple earnestness of which enables it to still remain the typical march for such solemn occasions, though more elaborate, and, in a certain sense, far more important, musical works of the class have been inherited from other composers. After this Reinecke's very beautiful prelude to his "Königs Manfred" was played by the stringed instruments with chastely solemn effect; this being followed by a Volkslied (Mendelssohn) "Es ist bestimmt in Gottes Rath," well sung by the choir without accompaniment. "Blest are the departed," from Spohr's oratorio "The Last Judgment," was then performed, the quartett, located in the organ gallery, being answered by the chorus from the body of the church with good effect; and after the prayer which here intervened Miss Frances Saville sang "Be thou faithful unto death," from Mendelssohn's "St. Paul," with sweetness and devotional feeling, the proper 'collo obligato being played by Herr Winckelmann. The sermon was succeeded by the grand old Lutheran hymn "Ein' feste Burg," of which the first verse was sung by the choir with organ accompaniment only, the last verse being taken fortis, with orchestra, congregation, and all. The next selection was "Brother, thou art gone before us," from Sullivan's sacred cantata "The Martyr of Antioch," in which both organ and choir were heard to advantage; and then came the recitative "Behold, I tell you a mystery," and the air "The trumpet shall sound," from Handel's "Messiah," the telling voice of Mr. Halliwell rising well above the orchestral accompaniment, of which Mr. Taylor's clearly played trumpet obligato was particularly noticeable. The preceding four items were not only appropriately chosen, but excellently placed in order: for the reference to the blessedness of those "who in the Lord are sleeping," was aptly succeeded by the reminder of the "crown of life" laid up for those who have proved "faithful unto death;" and then after the reflection that "the grave is not the goal" of such, nothing could have been in better sequence than the telling that "the dead shall be raised, incorruptible." As a finale to the strictly musical portion, no better choice could have been made than the impressive Funeral March, from the great "Sinfonia Eroica" of Beethoven, and the performance was fully adequate to the occasion. Before the dispersion of the vast congregation, to the strains of a concluding voluntary upon the organ, the National "Heil Kaiser Dir" was joined in by everybody—for they who were unable to pack up the German text, gave just as heartily the English national words associated with the familiar tune, yet doubtless without forgetting the sympathetic sentiment proper to the occasion.

The sermon was preached by Herr Pastor Schenck. The rev. gentleman took his text from Proverbs, 1., "The memory of the just is blessed." He said that it was an earnest moment that brought them together. Only three months had passed since they were in the same place to give expression to their pain over the death of the much-beloved and venerated Emperor William. At that time warm prayers were sent up to the Guider of all things for the preservation of the noble life of the then new Emperor. But scarcely had they recovered from the hard blow which had fallen upon them—and whilst still they were living in hope that the Emperor Frederick would recover—than behold there came again the sad news, "the German Emperor is dead." Hard and inexorable death had nipped off this noble flower just as it was unfolding itself into the full bloom of life. Hard was not satisfied with those who had passed a life of eventful deeds, and who, perhaps, longed for rest, but it asked, also, for those who, according to human calculation, had still many years left during which to enjoy the pleasures of existence. In the old Fatherland mourning bells were giving forth solemn sounds from tower to tower, in village or city. So far as the German tongue was spoken, all hearts were filled with sorrow, and down many cheeks hot burning tears flowed; for at last had come the hour whose approach had been for a long time expected with sorrow—the hour in which their much-beloved and much-tried Emperor closed his tired eyes for the sleep of death. The strong hand which wielded the sword so victoriously in war was now still and cold. Almost at the last moment favourable news came to gladden their hearts; but suddenly joy was turned into sorrow as they heard of the gradual falling off of the Emperor's strength. The great art of the physician, the devoted attention of his wife, the care of his family, and the best wishes and prayers of his people availed him not. Once again they learned that death spared none, but came alike to the king and the beggar. The hero of Koeniggraetz—who stood firm amid shot and shell—and the victor of Sedan had now been conquered by the king of terrors, and that, too, at the very time when the high ideals of his youth could have been put into practice. Shaken to their utmost hearts they stood that day—with his illustrious and noble wife, who, for 30 years hand in hand had shared joy and sorrow with him; with all the members of the Imperial family—yes, with all the great Fatherland—at the grave of the departed; and they wept tears of the deepest sympathy, compassion, and sorrow. But with that sorrow was also blended thanks to God that he had at last released him from his sufferings and trial, and had taken him to where there was no more sorrow and no more pain. And for what were they sorrowing? The answer was, because of the departure of a good man from amongst them. A slight reference might be permitted to his life. In spite of his high rank, he had a warm heart for his soldiers. He would visit the wounded and cheer the sick, and would call a common soldier "my son." No wonder that he was so much loved by his followers, and that they placed in him the utmost confidence. But although their sleeping Emperor was a great general, he was not at heart a soldier. In his inmost soul he had an aversion to war. There were many examples which showed this. Yes indeed, he was what his name indicated, "der Friedensliebe"—rich in peace. When their beloved Emperor William died, to no unknown or untried prince fell the management of the nation's affairs. No more loved, and no more worthy a man could have taken charge of the government. They knew him well. His life was before them like the pages of an open book. Fortune and misfortune had tried him, and he had come forth victorious from both. He was received with devotion and esteem, and—because of his sufferings—with even more devotion than when he had returned in triumph from battle. For many long years, the eyes of the people had rested upon him with great expectations; and in his heroic behaviour, his noble appearance, the highmindedness of his character, he embodied the ideal of a true German. But, had it fallen to his lot to occupy such a high station in life, he would yet by virtue of his talents have been a conspicuous personage. As a prince and an emperor the nation was justified in expecting from him an august reign during which there would have been a promotion of the peaceful arts. The Emperor William I. founded, in three campaigns, the united Empire; and the fancy which the people had painted for themselves was that he should be followed by an Emperor who would in long years of peace spread the blessings of culture over the land. But it was appointed, in God's providence, that we must give up the dearest wishes of our hearts. Great stood the Emperor before us as a general; greater as a man; but greater than all as a sufferer. The world hesitated whether to think of him as a hero or an invalid. The patience, calmness, and fortitude which he showed in his sickness had won not only the admiration of his own people, but of people throughout the whole of the civilised world. The keen flight of his thoughts could not be limited; the energy of his will could not be undermined; with an unbroken spirit he met the slow but sure advance of his fate. Yes, the memory of this heroic suffering Emperor would long remain with them as a grand example; and might they also learn to bear suffering without complaint. What had gone by did not return; but still it left its shadow behind it. Dark lay the future before them, and the thought of it must make them uneasy, especially as war clouds seemed to loom in the political horizon. The whole of Europe was like a volcano; nations were armed to the teeth; but in spite of all this let them not throw away their confidence. God would still guide and preserve their nation. More than ever their beloved fatherland wanted a youthful and powerful Emperor and general, and the majority of their people looked confidently to the new Emperor, William II. The fearless son of a fearless father, the new Emperor would fulfil the work which providence had given him to do. His warlike tendencies had been exaggerated; at any rate they did not seem to be justifiable. At a meeting not long ago, he had spoken in the most personal denial of any such idea. His father had the greatest confidence in his son. At San Remo the Emperor Frederick said to the people surrounding him, "A son which has such a great father, and a father who has such a great son can readily die." Had his father such great confidence in him, then they might have the same. Frederick the Great was only 28 years of age when he ascended the throne, and never had a prince more than he, Bismarck—he was only 27. "We fear God and nothing else in the world." According to the manifesto of the new Emperor, spoken out of his soul, he seemed to be of the same opinion. Therefore let them trust that his future would be fearless and true. God bless the empire and the Emperor.

The decorations were carried out by Messrs. David Jones and Co., for whom Mr. M'Dougall superintended the arrangements.

THE SYNAGOGUE.

Special reference was made to the death of the Emperor Frederick by Rabbi Davis in the Synagogue on Saturday the remarks of the Rabbi being based upon the quotation from II. Samuel, iii., 28,—"Know you not that there is a Prince and a great man fallen this day in Israel?" The Rabbi said:—Learning on Saturday last, while on my way to the Synagogue, that what we had long feared to hear, but what we could scarcely expect to be much longer deferred, namely, the death of the Emperor Frederick of Germany—had become a lamentable fact, a memorial offering was made during the service in the name of the mighty departed and we beseught the God of Mercy to have his soul in His gracious keeping. I need hardly say that, in addressing this supplication to the Throne of Grace, my heart went forth with the prayer, as did that of my congregants, not one of whom but felt deep sorrow for the calamity that had befallen the Fatherland in the loss of its brilliant son, one so well-beloved, and so worthy of their esteem; a feeling equally moving the races of the civilised world, since it came home to everyone that he had lost a dear friend, insomuch as 'Unser Fritz,' as his countrymen loved to call him, had been, in all essentials, the friend of mankind. Therefore I ask in the language used by King David when he heard of the horrible assassination of his general Abner, 'Know ye not that there is a Prince, and a great man, fallen this day in Israel?' In doing so I give the word Israel an enlarged meaning—the sense conveyed in the true import of the term; the sense expressed in the origination of the name. In this sense Israel stands for the intellectual world, and the intellectual world has sustained a severe loss in his removal from the exalted sphere of his activity, the imperial sphere in which he moved for so short a time, much too short a time for the furtherance and the advancement of our common humanity. I, then, as a representative of the citizens of all enfranchised lands, weep for the gracious sovereign who, judging from the character of his past life, judging from his noble utterances, judging from many of his actions, the recollection of which will live long in the memory of his subjects, has been called away all too soon from a world which could ill spare the wise and true-hearted and enlightened ruler of an empire now occupying so prominent a position, and which possesses so much power over the destinies of Europe, for good or evil, according to the councils which prevail in it, and which, to a great extent are fashioned after the pattern of its Kaiser. Once more I ask, 'Know ye not that there is this day a Prince and a great man fallen in Israel;' but this time in a less comprehensive sense, for I ask it of you, not as members of the whole vast confraternity of mankind, but in this instance as a singular body, yet living in many countries, apart so far as regards their religious convictions, but one with them in all that concerns the duties due to the Empire; one with them in their loyalty to the sovereign; one with them in their deference to the laws of the land; one in identifying themselves with their humane and charitable efforts, and in defending them when the exigencies of the occasion shall call them from their peaceful pursuits into the turmoil of the battlefield; and by that sense I ask, 'Know ye not that there is this day a Prince and a great man has fallen this day in Israel,' for there has fallen one who by his liberal-mindedness, by his love of fair dealing, by his freedom from prejudice, by his readiness to accord to all sects and shades of opinion the unfettered exercise of their belief and its practices, while holding to his own with all the zeal by which characterises the man of high principle; and by that fall Israel has to deplore the loss of a far-reaching example, which, having been of such important service to them in a prince, would have been an incalculable benefit to them in an emperor. In the course of the sermon delivered by me on the occasion of the religious celebration of the Centenary of the colony, speaking on the word 'dal,' which I interpreted as including all who were languishing in a load of sickness, no matter what might be their position, I asked: 'And shall we withhold our sympathy from the earnest and magnanimous Crown Prince of Germany, the darling of his countrymen, and of all the lovers of progress, and tolerance, and free institutions, and true nobility of nature?' 'There is not,' I said, 'a single Hebrew, in any part of the globe where the tidings of his love of right and justice and goodwill to all sorts and conditions of men have penetrated, out of whose heart there has not proceeded a sincere prayer for his recovery.' Alas that the prayers of all good men in all corners of the globe should have availed him nothing; that the decree of heaven, doubtless for some wise purpose far beyond the reach of our present knowledge, could not be disturbed; that the fell disease which had taken so strong a hold of his otherwise powerful constitution—a disease which he bore with such heroic patience, with a strength of mind that dominated over his pains, with a tender solicitude for the comfort of others which outweighed his sufferings, and which, out of profound love for his dear ones and out of devotion to his country, he subjected to his great power of will far longer than could have been anticipated from the fearful nature of his malady—could not be dislodged. Ah, my dear friends, verily 'a Prince and a great man has fallen in Israel this day.' One who generously stood in the breach when the monster Anti-Semitism reared its unrighteous head in Germany, and when but for his disinterested efforts it might have reached far more dangerous proportions; one who by his liberal bent of his character; one who added by a Princess educated under the wing of free England; one who would have done much to introduce a spirit of wide toleration into the kingdom, and govern it as a constitutional monarch, mindful of the rights of his subjects, respecting those rights, and making them conduce, by the loyal love they would beget, in cementing and firmly establishing the greatness of the Empire which had been laid by Frederick the Great, and consolidated by his renowned father, William II. His demise has put an end to those high hopes, and we can only trust that his son and successor, brought up in a home where these aspirations have been inhaled as from their natural atmosphere, will carry out those principles of action that would have characterised the government of his illustrious father. May the late Emperor find in the joys of eternity, now opened to his newly awakened senses, a higher and nobler throne of glory than that which awaited him on earth; a throne of glory not won by descent nor by conquest, nor by position, nor by wealth, but by actions; by good works among men that shall tend to glorify God's name, raise the dignity of manhood, and relieve the ills of the forlorn and the grief-laden."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—It is painful to have to say anything adverse to so noble and genuine a man as the late Emperor of Germany; and this painful

SPORTING INTELLIGENCE.

THE TURF.

With the exception of the weights for the Caulfield Cup, which are promised a week hence, the adjustments for all the principal handicaps to be decided during the coming spring campaign will see the light to-day. Mr. Scarr's share of the work comprises the A. J. C. Great Metropolitan Stakes, the Rosehill Cup, and the Hawkesbury Race Club County Purse and Grand Handicap, while Mr. Barnard takes the responsibility of bringing together the numerous candidates for the V. R. C. Melbourne Cup. The weights for the last mentioned event are anxiously expected, as already a great amount of wagering has been transacted both in straight out and double betting, and, from a speculative standpoint, the race promises to be fully as interesting as any of its predecessors.

The Rosehill Racecourse is gradually coming into favour with trainers, who speak highly of the consideration shown them by the authorities, as well as of the excellence of the course for training purposes. Besides the number of performers on the flat that undergo their preparations at Rosehill, R. W. Morris has a lengthy string of jumpers under his tuition, and the latest addition to the equine contingent is a team of trotters in charge of J. M. Brooks, the well-known trainer, who considers the track one of the best in the colonies for trotting contests.

Mr. J. Monaghan was the largest winner at the Rosehill June meeting on Saturday, his cheque amounting to £125, the result of Rosebud's win in the June Handicap. Mr. S. Fielder secured £100, Messrs. D. Lawson, A. Feez, and M. J. Kinnane £50 each, Mr. T. Cook £25, and Messrs. H. Oxenham and E. Chippendale £10 each. Total, £340.

The settlement of wagers over the Rosehill June meeting takes place to-day at Tattersall's rooms.

Racing men generally, and members of the Sydney Hunt Club, are reminded that at 4 o'clock this afternoon nominations close with Mr. G. B. Rowley, secretary, Rosehill Racing Club, for the undermentioned events, which are comprised in the programme to be played out under the auspices of the Sydney Hunt Club, at Rosehill, on the 9th proximo:—Hurdle Race, a handicap of 70 sovs., second horse to receive 10 sovs. from the prize, amateur riders (members of the Sydney Hunt Club), 2 miles: Flying Hendicap of 60 sovs., 6 furlongs; Open Steeplechase, a handicap of 100 sovs., second horse to receive 15 sovs. from the prize, amateur riders (members of the Sydney Hunt Club), about 2½ miles; Selling Race of 50 sovs., for three-years-old and upward, winner to be sold for 100 sovs., selling allowances, 7 furlongs: Hunt Club Handicap of 100 sovs., with a sweepstake of 1 sov. each for starters to go to the second horse, 1 mile 3 furlongs; and the Members' Handicap, a trophy value 10 sovs., for bona-fide hunters, owned and ridden by members of the Sydney Hunt Club; lowest weight 10st.; 1½ mile. It must not be forgotten that, with the exception of the Members' Handicap, for which the entrance is free, nominations must be accompanied by the usual fee of 1 sov. for each event.

Those interested should bear in mind that acceptances for the leading handicaps in connection with the annual meeting of the Hay Jockey Club on the 11th and 13th July, are due on Wednesday. The events that require attention are the Hurdle Race, Jockey Club Handicap, Handicap Trot, and Winter Handicap.

The general entry for the June Midwinter meeting takes place to-morrow.

The Midwinter meeting of the Gympie (Q.) Jockey Club commences on Thursday next, and will be continued and concluded on the following day.

After winning the Selling Race at Rosehill, on Saturday, Sentence was brought under the hammer, and realised £60, all of which went to the funds of the club. The mare was bought in by her owner.

The weights for the handicaps to be decided at the first day's racing in connection with the Canterbury Park June meeting, should be made known this forenoon.

SATURDAY, JUNE 23.

Stewards, Messrs. Henry Austin, S. M. Betts, William Clarke, W. R. Corris, M.D., F. W. Hill, Hon. J. Lackey, M.L.C., M. J. M'Namara, J. B. Offiffe, J. A. Scarr, W. E. Walford, J. H. Want; judge, Mr. J. B. Offiffe; handicapper, Mr. J. A. Scarr; timekeeper, Mr. T. M. Alcock; starter, Mr. D. Griffin, jun.; clerk of the scales, Mr. Charles Perry; clerk of the course, Mr. J. Ashworth; secretary, Mr. G. B. Rowley.

The Rosehill Racing Club have good reason to be satisfied with the patronage accorded to their June meeting on Saturday when the attendance, which included a large number of ladies, compared favourably with the best gatherings hitherto held on that deservedly popular course. The demands upon the resources of the railway department, especially about midday, were very great, and a number of carriages were uncomfortably packed, but notwithstanding these slight inconveniences, the traffic was carried out in good time and without a hitch, under the direction of Mr. Read. The weather, though a trifle cold, was bright and pleasant, and the course and its surroundings looked as well as could be expected at this season of the year, while the track, though slightly on the hard side, was in good running order. A capital luncheon was provided by Mr. George Austin, who had no cause to complain of lack of customers, and the tea-rooms and refreshment-booths were also well patronised. The Granville Band, under the direction of Mr. H. Walker, helped to beguile the short interval between the races, by playing selections of music with good taste and precision, and contributed much towards the afternoon's enjoyment. Mr. D. Griffin, jun., made his debut as starter, but he did not appear to be any improvement on those whom he succeeded with the flag. Owing to the numerous breaks-away that occurred ere the signal was given in the Ladies' Mile, fully a quarter of an hour was wasted at the post, and a repetition of that state of affairs should be avoided, even at the risk of giving a few of the riders a three months' spell from active service. A couple of the jockeys came to grief in the Steeplechase, but escaped without injury; and young Hodgkins, who rode Sanon in the June Handicap, had a bad fall through his mount colliding with another horse as they swept past the official stand. Assistance was promptly offered to the fallen jockey, who was carried off the course in an insensible condition, but he gradually recovered consciousness, and general satisfaction was expressed when it became known that a severe shock to the system was the extent of his injuries. Mr. J. B. Offiffe officiated as judge with his usual ability, and Messrs. Rowles and Clarke left nothing undone that could contribute to the convenience and comfort of the large assemblage. The return trip was made in good time, the last train reaching Redfern by 5.30 p.m.

Out of the 42 numbered in the book for the Nationalists' Handicap, 21 faced the flag, and Lady Marion and Stockwell were most fancied, while Viper had a very strong following. The start was not a good one, and after Butterfly had made a deal of running she retired in favour of Lady Lovel and Lady Marion, and Strephon also putting in his claim, a pretty race ensued to the half-distance, where Strephon left them, and won comfortably. The winner was a trifle lame when he left the paddock, and, as a consequence, went out unbacked, even by his most intimate friends. Only four were stripped for the steeplechase, and, on the strength of the form he had shown at Randwick, Grafton was made a strong favourite. Major stopped at the second fence, and Bones came to grief over the third, so that Marksman and Grafton were left to settle the matter, and as Grafton had been recently purchased by Marksman's stable, all interest died out. The two friends raced on terms at a good pace to the back of the course, where Marksman fell, and left Grafton to finish the course alone. A pretty good field contested for the June Handicap, and Rosebud, who had young Fielder in the saddle, was supported so stanchly that at the last 7 to 4 was the best offer. The start elicited a round of applause, and after the field had battled it out to the home turn, the favourite came through and won cleverly from Invader and Here's Luck. The latter was saddled up again for the Selling Race, and was backed up to 5 to 4, but he appeared to be unable to get on his legs, and could only get third to Sentence and Iona. Although 18 went to the post for the Ladies' Mile the betting made that race something like a match between Sloth and Nonsense, and the former putting in his claim when the others were stopping, won pretty comfortably at the end from The Miner, who was seen home by Nonsense. The following is an account of each race:—

NATIONALISTS HANDICAP of 100 sovs.; second horse 10 sovs. from the prize. Six furlongs.

Betting: 3 to 1 v. Lady Marion, 6 to 1 v. Stockwell, 7 to 1 each v. Viper, Nonsense, and Rosehille, 8 to 1 v. Cinderella, 10 to 1 v. Strephon, 12 to 1 v. any other.

After a few breaks away, the signal was given to a straggling start, from which the colours of Viper, Butterfly, and Lady Marion were the first to show; while Stockwell, Gaytime, and Enniscale were the last to move. Butterfly made the running round the bend and to the home turn, attended by Lady Lovel, and after the pair succeeded Lady Marion, The Miner, Cinderella, Iona, and Strephon. Lady Lovel headed Butterfly at the entrance to the straight, but the effort played her out, and, Strephon and Lady Marion catching her at the half-distance, a pretty race took place for a few strides, when Strephon drew away, and won comfortably by nearly two lengths from Lady Marion, who was three-quarters of a length in front of Lady Lovel. The placed horses were followed by Viper, Cinderella, Albion, Marlborough, Butterfly, and The Miner, while Enniscale was a long last. Time, 1 minute 16¾ seconds.

THE STEEPLECHASE, a handicap of 100 sovs.; second horse 10 sovs. from the prize. About 2½ miles.

Betting: 5 to 4 v. Grafton, 2 to 1 v. Major, 7 to 2 v. Marksman, 6 to 1 v. Bones.

Bones, Grafton, Major, and Marksman sailed over the first fence in order; but Major turned his head at the second jump, and Bones was left with a long command at the third, but taking off too far he turned turtle, and the two stable mates were left to take jump for jump until the far side of the course was reached for the second time, when Marksman came down, and the favourite was left to complete the rest of the journey alone. Time, 4 minutes 59 seconds.

THE ROSEHILL JUNE HANDICAP, of 150 sovs.; second horse 25 sovs. from the prize; 1¼ mile and 100 yards.

Mr. J. Monaghan's b m Rosebud, by Musket—Rosarina, 5 years, 6st. 2lb. (J. Fielder) ... 1

Mr. J. Norton's ch m Dress, 4 years, 6st. 6lb. (Robinson) ... 0
Mr. C. I. Roberts's ch h Young Kingston, 4 years, 6st., 4lb., including 1lb. over (W. Delaney) ... 0
Mr. T. Jamison's b h Riddle, 5 years, 6st. (M. Dunbey) ... 0

Betting: 7 to 4 v. Rosebud, 5 to 1 each v. Desmond and Invader, 7 to 1 each v. Teddy Yuille and La Valette, 10 to 1 v. any other.

The flag was lowered to an excellent start, and when they had gone a few strides La Valette appeared at the front, only to give place to Invader, who led along the river's bend to the back of the course, where Bertram took up the running, and forced the pace round the bend by nearly a length, followed by Desmond, Invader, La Valette, and Riddle, who were clustered and clear from Rosebud and Here's Luck. Once fairly in the straight, Rosebud assumed command, and, drawing away in the run home, won by two lengths and a-half from Invader, who beat Here's Luck by a neck for second place; while Teddy Yuille, Penrose, and Desmond were almost on terms with Here's Luck, and after the bunched lot came La Valette, Bertram, Young Kingston, and Riddle, while Figtree finished last. Time, 2 minutes 16 seconds.

THE SELLING RACE, of 100 sovs. Weight for age. For three-years-old and upwards. The winner to be sold for 100 sovs. Seven furlongs.

Mr. S. Fielder's b m Sentence, by Captivator—Sunbeam (nil), aged, 6st. 12lb. (J. Fielder) ... 1

Mr. E. S. Rowe's ch m Butterfly (nil), 4 years, 6st. 12lb. (M. Riley) ... 0
Mr. J. Monaghan's b f Agnes (nil), 3 years, 6st. 9½lb., including 1½lb. over (M. Farlane) ... 0

Betting: 5 to 4 v. Here's Luck, 2 to 1 v. Sentence, 6 to 1 each v. Iona and Agnes.

After a good start had been effected, Butterfly took up a commanding lead, while Here's Luck was very slow on his legs, and was out of the battle before half the journey had been completed. Iona headed Butterfly when halfway round the bend, and turned into the straight a length clear from Sentence, who outpaced her in the run home, and won cleverly by a length and a-quarter from Iona, who beat Here's Luck by half-a-length; while Butterfly was scarcely a length away, fourth, and two lengths from her game Agnes. Time, 1 minute 30¾ seconds.

THE LADIES' MILE, of 100 sovs.—Second horse to receive 10 sovs. from the prize. A handicap for all horses, to be nominated by ladies. Lowest weight, 7st. One mile.

Miss Philips ns ch g Strathbard, 3 years, 7st. (M'Grath) ... 0

Betting: 2 to 1 v. Sloth, 4 to 1 v. Nonsense, 7 to 1 each v. Bonnie Doon and Belvidere, 8 to 1 v. Optima, 10 to 1 v. any other.

Roberts and Strathbard delayed the start for something like a quarter of an hour, when the signal was given to a moderate get away. From the stand it appeared as though The Wreck, Belvidere, and Nonsense had the best of the start, while Bonnie Doon and Marlborough also got well away; but Dolphin lost a deal of ground, and was never in it afterwards. After passing the seven-furlong post Marlborough and Roberts took up the running and led Belvidere, Bonnie Doon, Nonsense, and Optima three lengths along the far side of the course. Roberts retired when five furlongs from home, and Marlborough and Optima showed the way round the bend, very closely attended by Bonnie Doon, The Miner, and old Sloth, who had taken the place vacated by Belvidere. The leaders boxed up at the home turn, but once in the straight, The Miner dashed to the front only to be cut down in the run home by Sloth, who, finishing in his old determined way, won cleverly by a length and three-quarters from The Miner. Nonsense made a great effort from the last turn and finished three lengths from The Miner, and then followed Optima, Bonnie Doon, Marines, and Marlborough; while the last two were Dolphin and Strathbard. Time, 1 minute 44¼ seconds.

Adeline and Contingent raced together to the front fence. Contingent blundered over the second fence and broke his martingale. Freetrader fell at the fence in the dip. As they approached the sod wall, Adeline drew up to Beadsman II. Adeline, however, hit the mud wall heavily, and lost her chance. Contingent broke down. Beadsman II., full of running, beat Reny by two and a half lengths, Kildare being four lengths further back. Time, 5 minutes 8 seconds.

THE ENGLISH FOOTBALL TEAM V. SOUTH MELBOURNE.

MELBOURNE, SUNDAY.

The English footballers met South Melbourne on Saturday afternoon. About 10,000 spectators were present. The Englishmen with the wind played well for a time. They worked well to one another, and showed a great improvement in their play since the Carlton match. Thomas had a place kick near goal, but failed to score. South scarcely the ball into the Englishmen's quarters, and several shots were tried, only behinds resulting. Then England made a rush, out of which Paul scored first goal for England. Rain commenced falling at this time. Some rough play followed. Reid kicked first goal for South Melbourne shortly before quarter-time. M'Shane kicked second goal for South. The game at quarter-time was South Melbourne, 2 goals 5 behinds; England 1 goal 2 behinds. In the next quarter England showed very smart work in forcing the play. South scored the next goal, and then England put on a spurt. Dr. Brooks got a place kick, but failed. This was followed by the fourth goal for the South. After the ball had passed up and down the field South secured another goal. The game at half-time was—South Melbourne, 4 goals 10 behinds; England, 1 goal 5 behinds. The sixth goal for South Melbourne soon followed, and then England made some capital play. Dr. Brooks, from a place kick, secured second goal for England, and from another chance the same player scored a behind. Another behind for South Melbourne, and then Eagles got England's third goal. At three-quarter-time the score was—South Melbourne, 6 goals 10 behinds; England, 3 goals 7 behinds. From this to the end England had no success. South Melbourne had numerous shots for goal. The result of the match was—South Melbourne, 7 goals 29 behinds; England, 3 goals 7 behinds.

FOOTBALL.

The following matches were played on Saturday:—

A match was played on the Association Cricket Ground between a team from the Melbourne Football Club and another selected from the metropolitan clubs playing under Australian rules to represent New South Wales. The spectators numbered a few hundreds. The match did not by any means realise the possibilities of the Australian game. The New South Wales men failed to play together. They were entirely baffled by the little marking of the visitors, and the greater part of the play was around the New South Wales goals. Melbourne won by two goals eleven behinds to one goal one behind. Melbourne won the toss and elected to kick from south to north, the wind blowing across the ground. New South Wales kicked off, and the ball was quickly taken into their territory. After a few minutes' play a punt sent the ball through the goal; but it was touched by the goal-keeper, and a behind was therefore the result. A little mark gave Melbourne a long place in front, but the shot for goal, although it was an excellent one, fell short. A free kick was awarded for a sling, but the kick had no result. M'Kellar marked splendidly right in goal and kicked out. The little marking of Melbourne was too good for the locals, and time after time shots were made at the New South Wales goal, but without effect. M'Keller at last made a good run along the western wing past the centre, and the ball went out of bounds. After some fairly fast play on the opposite wing another shot at the New South Wales goal resulted in a behind, and the ball was taken along the eastern wing. It was at once brought back, and, Melbourne marking in the centre, another behind was scored. Quarter time was then called, Melbourne having scored five behinds. Ends having been changed, Melbourne once more pressed their opponents, and a short shot for goal gave the defenders a mark right in goal, but no score followed. Griffiths made a good run up the centre, but he lost the ball at length. Several long marks brought the ball well down towards the Melbourne territory, but Arthur missed the last. A chance for a mark in the Melbourne goal was well baulked by the defenders, and the ball was run back along the western wing. M'Kellar and Elliott little marked the ball away from goal on the wing, but a pass to the latter was rushed, and A. King shortly after kicked first goal for Melbourne. After the kick-off the latter showed some very clever little marking, but no further score was made up to half-time, when the score stood: Melbourne, one goal five behinds; New South Wales, nil. On resuming there was some uneventful play on the eastern wing. A. King made a fine run, but was at length recalled for running too far without bounding. Higgins repeated the feat on the eastern wing, but nothing came of it. A kick along the ground sent the ball to the Melbourne posts, and the goalkeeper kicking it straight out the ball was little marked in front, but a somewhat easy chance failed. Immediately afterwards New South Wales scored its first behind. The Melbourne men then brought the ball down the ground, and a behind was scored. They hemmed their opponents in, and Griffiths marking at the wing had an unsuccessful shot for goal. K. Burn had another try off a little mark, but did not score, and W. Burns picking the ball up dropped a smart goal. The ball being kicked off was taken into the Melbourne territory, and New South Wales managed to score the first goal. M'Namara followed the ball out of some scrimmaging, and Franks falling down right in goal gave M'Namara the opportunity for kicking a goal at close quarters, and he took advantage of it. Scores: Melbourne, 2 goals, 7 behinds; New South Wales, 1 goal, 1 behind. A long drop gave A. King a mark in front, and he had a nice shot for goal, but he failed to make sufficient allowance for the wind, and a behind was the result. The ball was bounced in front of the New South Wales goal, and Burton getting a mark had a shot at goal, but did not score. A. King and Griffiths had drops for goals off marks, but without success, the former sending the ball behind. The ball was taken down the eastern wing, and a mark in front gave New South Wales a good chance for goal, but it was not accepted, the kick being weak. An easy mark behind was missed by New South Wales, and time was called, the scores thus standing: Melbourne, 2 goals, 11 behinds; New South Wales, 1 goal, 1 behind. Mr. Atkinson as field umpire kept the game going fast throughout.

The University and Wallaroo Football teams met on the Agricultural Ground to try conclusions for the Gardiner Cup. The attendance was good. The Wallaroo team were weakened by the absence of two of their prominent players. Prominent among those who worked hard were Cameron, Cotioned Wade, Hungerford, Graham, of the Wallaroo; and Colquhoun, Flynn, Wood, and Tange of the University. The first mentioned player showed prominently amongst his fellows, and made the best run of the afternoon and secured his try. Play commenced about 25 minutes to 4 o'clock, when Shaw of the Wallaroo kicked off against the wind, they having lost the toss. The ball was promptly returned by Wood, sent into scrimmage, and gradually worked down into the Wallaroo's quarter, where it went in touch. When it was thrown in Moloney got possession and made a good run, but the ball was called back and scrimmaged. From this a long pass sent it to Colquhoun, who was tackled successfully. From the next scrimmage the forwards of the University dribbled well through their opponents' defence, and Wallaroo had to force. The kick-out went in touch, and when the ball was returned Colquhoun gained possession, and made an excellent run, from which he got a touch. Flynn, who negotiated the try, scored a good goal. After kicking off Wood got hold of the ball, but was held. From the scrimmage the ball journeyed out of bounds, and when returned some had passing ensued, and the ball went out again. Some good dribbling by Bellbridge followed, but again the ball went in touch. Wade gained possession, and though he did his utmost to break through the University he was collared, but made a good pass to Hungerford, who, however, was tackled in turn. Some good dribbling was followed by another scrimmage, from which the ball was taken cleverly by the University, and passed to Colquhoun, who, however, was disappointed in his hopes of a run. The Wallaroos played on the ball and worked it towards their rivals' goal, when Wade got hold and made a good run across the field, but was stopped, and the ball went in touch. A series of scrimmages propelled the ball into the Wallaroo's 25, but it was dribbled out. Tange acquired a claim, and made a good pass to Flynn, who in turn passed to Colquhoun, but the latter was tackled. The game progressed. Across the field to the northern side the ball went out of play. From the throw-in Wade made a great effort to break through, showing clever dodging and charging; but he was laid low. Neill dribbled well within the Wallaroo's line, but Graham by a timely kick relieved his goal from danger. The University team by dribbling worked the ball again within the Wallaroos' 25, and a scrimmage resulted in the corner. Neill passed to Colquhoun, who passed to Flynn, and the latter took his kick, but with no result. Graham nulled the return kick, and Colquhoun, who received, was tackled. The University, dribbling well, carried the ball well down the field, but it went in touch. Playing for a throw-in, Graham ran, but his career was soon checked. Then Wade made another dashing run into the centre, but was tackled. The Wallaroos now tried offensive tactics and carried the ball down towards their opponents' goal, but had not the good fortune to keep it there, the ball being well dribbled by the University forwards within Wallaroo territory. The latter carried it out of danger, but Flynn, by a judicious kick, returned it to the same spot. Wallaroo worked it back again, and, after a good pass, Wade made another of his great runs, but nothing came of it, and the ball was returned to Wallaroo quarters. A scrimmage followed in their 25, out of which I'an obtained the ball and passed to Wood, who managed to get within a dozen yards of the Wallaroo goal before he was tackled. Tange almost got a goal from the field, and a scrimmage resulted on the goal line. Another series of dribbles and the ball travelled away, then back again to the Wallaroo goal. Half-time being called, sides were changed. Hungerford kicked off well, and Flynn returned. Wade took possession of the ball, and, after getting it, made a splendid run right through his opponents, but was pulled down. The Wallaroos worked the ball out

The decision in the case of the Almado and Tirite Company, Limited, referred to in our London correspondent's letter, is one that will have an interest on this side of the world. Without special reference to this case, we may draw attention to the common practice of promoters of new companies stating in a very vague manner the unpleasant features of their projects. If the promoters are to get a price for their interests, it ought to be stated clearly in the prospectus, instead of being put so that it that this can be done most freely and most firmly by the interposition of a fresh hand. From the reports of Mr. SUTHERLAND's recent tour of inspection, it may well be understood that there is scope for reform in many directions; and that reforms may be effected with thoroughness and impartiality it is often desirable and sometimes necessary that the situation should be viewed by unfamiliar eyes. The attention of a stranger would be at once attracted by anomalies or abuses which might pass unnoticed by one more or less accustomed to the sight of them. The course of business in Government Departments has a natural tendency to run in ruts or grooves, and if it be desirable to introduce a freer method of proceedure the change is most likely to be effective if it is begun from outside.

We do not say that any outsider, without regard for his previous occupation and training, would be qualified to carry out reforms in a Government Department in a judicious manner. He should have knowledge and experience bearing upon the particular kind of work to be done, as well as the power of considering the situation from a non-political and unofficial standpoint. The fact is that in the management of our railways we need more experience than we have hitherto had, and if we can gain command of more intimate knowledge of the conditions of financial success amidst the keen competition that prevails in England, the temporary loss of merely local experience may be far outweighed. It would be folly to institute comparisons by anticipation. We know how far Mr. GOODCHAP has succeeded. We cannot tell how far Mr. EDDY will succeed. The new COMMISSIONER will have to deal with circumstances widely differing from those to which he has been accustomed. The present COMMISSIONER entered upon his duties ten years ago without the advantage of experience in actual management. Mr. EDDY will come to the study of the particular problem presented by railway management in New South Wales prepared by twenty years' training on the London and North-Western and the Caledonian railways. We are not informed as to the length of time during which he held the high positions he has lately occupied; but he has been trained in a school in which a man to rise to a high place must have capacity and aptitude, and where he would have the opportunity of gaining experience hardly to be attained elsewhere.

The investment of British trust funds in colonial securities is becoming a matter of growing importance to capitalists. Money is accumulating, and the volume of the British National Debt is decreasing. The demand for consols is growing, and the supply is falling off, with the natural result that the price is rising. As a matter of fact capitalists have now to give £113 for an annuity of £3 per annum, which ten years ago they could obtain for £97. Although a great part of this advance in price has occurred since, and in consequence of, the recent conversion scheme, the whole of it is attributable to the reduction in the amount of the consols, combined with the increased demand for them. The delay in conversion unduly depressed the price, which, under ordinary conditions, would have advanced steadily with the growth in the volume of capital for investment.

In these circumstances the Colonial Agents-General in London are to be commended for having urged the SECRETARY OF STATE for the Colonies to amend the law so as to allow trustees to invest moneys under their control in colonial inscribed stocks without having previously obtained the sanction of the Court. Of course the recognition of colonial stocks in this way would enhance their value. Apart altogether from any such acknowledgment these securities have rapidly grown in public estimation. In 1868 the colony had to pay £5 16s. 4d. per cent. for its borrowed money, while consols only yielded £3 4s. per cent. Where the credit of the two countries was then 54s. 4d. per cent. apart, to-day it is only about 13s. per cent. apart. Thus, notwithstanding the drawbacks under which colonial securities rest, they are approximating in value to those of the mother country.

The causes of this improvement in the credit of the colonies are no doubt the prompt returns of interest, and the undoubted security offered for the continued payment of that interest, and ultimately of the principal. The public men of England are satisfied of the soundness of the investment. The LORD CHANCELLOR states that he is favourable to the inclusion of all colonial inscribed stocks in the list which the Judges are arranging as permissible for the investment of Chancery funds. The MARQUIS of SALISBURY approves of the granting of increased latitude to trustees in the matter of investing funds. In furtherance of the movement for the recognition of colonial stocks, no less an authority than Mr. BADEN POWELL, who perhaps understands the position of the colonies as well as any other man in England, has moved a resolution in the House of Commons, declaring that the suitability of colonial inscribed stocks as a means for the investment of trust funds ought to be better recognised by the Government. And in reply to this resolution we have Mr. GOSCHEN, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, admitting the security of colonial stocks. Thus the most prominent men of the United Kingdom are found publicly admitting the high character of our securities.

But although leading public men of England are satisfied with the character of our securities, that does not settle the matter. The acknowledgment of Mr. GOSCHEN was accompanied by statements of a rather discouraging character. His remark, "that the British Government is compelled to be extremely jealous as to the adoption of anything which would trench upon Imperial credit" may bear one or two interpretations. Perhaps it was intended to convey that in the event of legal recognition of colonial securities, failure of the colonies to meet obligations would dishonour Imperial law. Or perhaps it is thought that such recognition of colonial stocks, by increasing the total amount available for trustees, would reduce the value of English consols. Probably the addition of £156,000,000, the amount of the Australasian debts, to the first rank of securities available for trustees with additions from year to year would prevent the value of £700,000,000 of British bonds from continuing to rise so rapidly as it has done for some years past. In his official position as the representative of the English taxpayer, Mr. GOSCHEN, may not feel himself justified in doing anything towards giving the recognition which would have the effect of lessening British credit in this way. When the full text of Mr. GOSCHEN's speech comes to hand, we shall probably know exactly the meaning he intended to convey. As to his second statement, questioning the capacity of the Judges to adjudicate on the credit of the colonies, fuller light is also required. If that objection is insuperable, of course the only relief could come from new legislation. Parliament has been slow to extend the powers of trustees. Still within the past thirty years one security after another has been added to the list of stocks in which trust funds may be invested, and we may reasonably hope that at no distant date recognition will not be withheld from the securities of the colonies. Although Mr. BADEN POWELL's resolution was withdrawn, the acknowledgment of the high character of our securities elicited from such men as those named, supported by sufficient representations of the facts and figures of colonisation in Australasia, cannot fail soon to result in the creation of public opinion which will warrant the Judges or the Parliament in giving them their proper place with the best stocks of the Empire.

It is, however, gratifying to know that in the mean time, without Imperial recognition, Australasian stocks will be bought with increasing favour, not simply by ordinary investors, but even by trustees, who are at liberty to exercise discretion. Imperial recognition will have less value as time goes on, for the effect of refusal to grant it would be to cause property-owners to extend powers to trustees to invest in these stocks. Consols would thus become a necessary means of investment to a smaller proportion of trustees, and lose something of the favour which without the competition of colonial stocks on something like equal terms they enjoy. They have indeed been losing ground relatively for the last twenty years, and they will almost inevitably continue to lose something of their pre-eminent position. The refusal to grant Imperial recognition to colonial stocks may retard the progress of the approximation in value of the two classes of securities, but it cannot prevent it.

Upwards of 70 applications from gentlemen desirous of being appointed members of the Sydney Commission for the Melbourne Exhibition are in the hands of the Government. How many Commissioners have been appointed already we do not remember, but we know that the number is unnecessarily large. We shall be superabundantly represented as it is, and yet we find that as the time for opening the Exhibition grows near applicants for Commissionerships are coming forward by the score. It is to be hoped that the Government will be strong-minded enough to say "No" to these requests. Whatever may have been the case with previous appointments, it could serve no useful purpose to make fresh ones. The work of the Commission, excepting that which falls to the lot of the Executive, has been done, and if fresh Commissioners are now appointed, it will not be because they are wanted, but because certain persons wish to gain the advantages which the office of Commissioner would confer upon them. The Commissioners, apart from the honour and glory of the thing, will receive, we presume, free railway passes to and from Melbourne, and will not only have the entrée of the Exhibition, but will be sure of getting good places at the opening ceremony and on other special occasions. There is no particular harm in wishing for these things, but why should they be given to all who desire them? Where is the thing to stop? If 70 more Commissionerships are created, why not 700, or 7000? We submit that there should be just as many Commissioners as are required to properly represent the colony at the Exhibition, and no more. If the list could be pruned it would be an advantage, but to enlarge it, unless it can be shown that gentlemen have been omitted whose services are absolutely required, would be worse than a blunder. If Sydney people wish to see the Exhibition, let them defray their own travelling expenses, and pay for admission to the show, like other people. We have to consider our railway revenue, and we have also to consider the interests of the Melbourne people. They have laid out immense sums of money upon their Exhibition, and they look for some return, no doubt, from the admission fees paid by visitors from Sydney. But if we increase our list of Commissioners at the rate that seems to be expected, our Victorian friends will lose by us; unless, indeed, they take the matter into their own hands, and inform us, politely but firmly, that if we go too far they will have to treat New South Wales Commissioners as ordinary visitors. Most people will be of opinion that we have gone far enough already. To go any further would simply bring ridicule upon us.

The memorial service for the late Emperor of Germany was held in the Pitt-street Congregational Church yesterday afternoon, and it was quite as impressive as that held in the same place nearly four months ago for the Emperor WILLIAM. Yesterday's service was heightened, perhaps, in its pathos by the fact of the double sorrow coming to the German nation within so short a time. Public feeling in Australia has been very sympathetic towards the German people in their sorrow, and none the less so because a few persons have been found to take exception to the official form in which the expression of condolence has been put. There has been considerable interest taken in this matter, and we publish this morning letters referring to the resolution of condolence which our Parliament sends to the DOWAGER EMPRESS VICTORIA of GERMANY. One correspondent, who conveys both by signature and language that he is a German, speaks in condemnatory terms of the resolution. Exception is taken to the words to which Mr. BUCHANAN objected, and in reference to which he also writes to-day, but for a different reason. Our German correspondent is of opinion that the words must give the greatest offence, not only to the German people, but "to the memory of the venerable EMPEROR whose one great aim in life was to advance the best interests of his people." The meaning he gathers from the resolution is that our Legislature believes that "tyranny and oppression, despotism and slavery, reigned in Germany prior to the accession to the throne of the Emperor FREDERICK." These truly are strange misunderstandings. When that resolution is received in Germany, how will it be read? Because it says that the Emperor FREDERICK's death will be "an irreparable loss to the cause of freedom and human progress," is the logical conclusion that all rulers before the Emperor FREDERICK were despots and tyrants? Such a reading would be as unreasonable as it is fanciful. If one happens to say that B is a good man, it does not follow that one would have it understood that A is a bad man. There are no comparisons drawn in the resolution. They are the outcome in our correspondent's mind of a knowledge of the debate that occurred in the House on the subject; and had he read the resolution in Berlin instead of in Sydney, without accompanying information as to the interpretation put upon it by a small section of our Assembly, he would, as a German, have been well content. If members of the Assembly chose to make comparisons, the resolution is not accountable for that. It stands as it is written, meaning what it says—nothing more, and nothing less—that the death of the Emperor FREDERICK will be "an irreparable loss to the cause of freedom and human progress." There is in it no protest of any kind against any past policy in Germany. Our correspondent speaks of "strictures." Where are they? He says it is a condemnation of the policy of the Emperor WILLIAM I. and Prince BISMARCK. How can that be shown by the resolution? Surely our correspondent is trying to raise evil spirits in order that he may exorcise them. There has been so much that is unfounded evolved from this resolution that one begins to wonder if our English language is not delusive, and difficult to interpret. Mr. BUCHANAN still refers to the death of the EMPEROR as being spoken of in the resolution as an irreparable "blow" to freedom, and so he conjures up names of great friends of freedom to shame us. We again repeat that the loss of the Emperor FREDERICK is irreparable; as was the loss of his Emperor-father before him. Should it be, then, said that the loss is one to freedom, it does not imply injury. If the resolution is read intelligently, it will be considered to be in good taste, and of reasonable form.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

HIS Excellency the Governor, Lady Carrington, and the Hon. Rupert Carrington left Sydney on Saturday on a three days' excursion to the National Park. The vice-regal party left by special train at 10.55 a.m. for Loftus, which will be their headquarters; and they are expected to return to Government House on Tuesday.

WITH regard to the federal review which it is intended to hold in Melbourne during Exhibition time, we understand that Major-General Richardson has recommended that a force of about 1000 men should be sent to Victoria from this colony at the expense of the Government, the force being made up as follows:—500 partially paid Infantry, 250 Infantry Reserves, 100 cavalry, one field battery from the Permanent Artillery, and one from the Volunteer Artillery, also a detachment from the Engineers, Torpedo, and Signalling Corps, and an Ambulance party. The Major-General recommended, further, that the men should be paid during their absence at the usual rates given during continuous training, as, if New South Wales is to be efficiently represented on this occasion by a numerous and well-drilled body of troops, it will be necessary to pay the men, who otherwise cannot afford to leave their usual avocations. The Government, it appears, are still considering the subject, the chief question which prevents them from arriving at an immediate decision being the cost of the expedition, which will probably amount to at least £5000. The matter will probably be settled to-day or to-morrow.

THE scattered positions of the various military offices in Sydney has been the cause of much inconvenience and delay in the management of military affairs, and at length the authorities have decided to take steps which will somewhat lessen this difficulty. Hitherto the Volunteer Artillery headquarters have been at the Victoria Barracks, the Reserves have been located at the Brigade Office, in Phillip-street, and the Military Staff Office has been at Dawes Point, so that in point of distance the offices have been as far removed as they well could be. Orders have now been given, however, to remove the V. A. headquarters from Paddington to Phillip-street, whilst the Reserves, under Colonel Eden, will move from Phillip-street to the Staff Office at Dawes Point, where there is abundance of room to accommodate them. The remaining rooms at the Brigade Office in Phillip-street will be placed at the disposal of Colonel Bingham, firemaster, as the duties connected with this new office of firemaster require the provision of office accommodation. The change which is thus to be made, welcome as it is, does not by any means leave matters in a perfect state, as the military offices are still divided between two buildings a considerable distance apart. What is really required to ensure the most efficient working of our military organisation is a central building, large enough to accommodate under one roof all the various military departments.

A SERIES of novel and interesting scientific experiments are at present being carried out at Berry's Bay by Professor Threlfall, of the Sydney University, with the object of ascertaining the velocity with which the shock of a torpedo explosion is transmitted through the surrounding water. With the view of solving this important problem, the professor has invented and constructed a number of instruments, notably a gauge for receiving and transmitting to the shore the shock given by a torpedo. The professor has been carrying out these researches for some months, and has already achieved substantial results, although he has been somewhat delayed by the difficulty of obtaining explosives. No gun-cotton was procurable, and although abundance of it lay stored close by in the torpedo stores, official routine prevented him from obtaining or purchasing any of it, and he has been obliged to have recourse to dynamite. The torpedos used are only small ones, containing a 10oz. charge, and when an experiment is made two gauges are placed at distances of about 150 yards from the torpedo. The gauges, which are under water, transmit the effect of the explosion on the water to the shore by means of an electric wire, where an ingenious machine called a myograph registers the result. The myograph—which has also been constructed by the professor—consists principally of a heavy pendulum, carrying a plate of smoked glass, on which the results of the experiment are mechanically recorded by two pointers in electrical communication with the gauges in the water. A tuning-fork, which makes 100 vibrations in a second, also forms part of the apparatus, and a pointer attached to it marks the glass plate as it passes, with regular curves, each of which indicates 1-100th of a second. The pendulum on its downward passage touches a key which explodes the mine, and thus the time which elapses between the explosion of the torpedo and the contact of the disturbed water with the gauges can be measured to the minutest fraction of a second. As the distance between the torpedo and the gauges is also known, the velocity of the disturbance resulting from the explosion can easily be calculated. It is hoped that the result of the experiments will be the solution of the whole problem of the effect which a torpedo has on the surrounding water when it explodes.

THE Intercolonial Rabbit Commission are now engaged in the preparation of an interim report, which will be submitted to the Government in the course of a few days. The report will embody the whole of the work of the commission up to the present date. No opinions will be expressed in it regarding the principal subject of the inquiry—the fact whether the diseases proposed to be introduced amongst rabbits are dangerous to other forms of animal life—but a vast amount of information with respect to the efficacy of the diseases as destroying media will be published. The report will also contain the official account of the recent visit of the commission to Melbourne, Adelaide, and Silverton.

ON Friday last a number of gentlemen who are engaged in the Prothonotary's office assembled together to wish success to Mr. T. E. Murphy, who, after creditably filling for 10 years a responsible position in the office named, has undertaken the management of a branch of the business of Messrs. Want, Johnson, and Co. Mr. Murphy's undeviating courtesy to those who came in contact with him in business, and his efficiency as a clerk, were recognised by his fellow-officers, who presented him with an illuminated address and a valuable collection of law books. Mr. Murphy having briefly but feelingly expressed his appreciation of the compliment paid to him, the pleasant proceedings terminated.

AT the last monthly meeting of the Parramatta Benevolent Society it was announced that the funds of the institution were overdrawn, and that there was a very large number of persons receiving assistance. The visiting committee were requested to make strict inquiry into the merits of the various recipients; and to report any cases which they did not consider deserving of their charity.

THE STANLEY EXPEDITION.

REPORTED ARRIVAL OF STANLEY ON THE WHITE NILE.

[BY CABLE.]
(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

LONDON, JUNE 23.

A report has reached Suakim to the effect that a white man has arrived at the Bahr-el-Ghazel, a tributary of the White Nile, after having conquered the hostile tribes inhabiting the country through which he had traversed.

It is believed that the white man in question is Mr. H. M. Stanley, who when last heard of in April last was encamped in the Upper Arwimi country, where he was greatly harassed by the hostile natives.

The report has not yet been confirmed, but the Arabs who brought the intelligence to Suakim persist that there is good foundation for their statement.

The Tannadice arrived yesterday, from Adelaide, with 14 Chinese passengers. Special attention was paid her by the Customs Department, but no hitch occurred. The ship Dharwar arrived to-day from London in charge of the chief officer, Mr. Hipgraves. Captain Hutchens was incapacitated through a fracture of the leg during terrible weather near the Cape on May 29. A heavy sea smashed the wheel and carried away two men. One named Charles Martin disappeared overboard; the other was carried into the mizzen rigging. The captain was at the same time swept backwards and forwards, and had his leg broken. He was taken to the hospital on arrival.

So far the leading members of the Opposition have not received sufficient support to warrant Sir John Downer tabling a motion of want of confidence in the Government, the Independent party having declined to discuss the question of a change of Ministry, except on the question of policy. The Premier will postpone making any lengthy statement on the Chinese Conference until he introduces a bill on the subject.

THE RABBIT CONFERENCE IN BRISBANE.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]
FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

BRISBANE, SUNDAY.

The Rabbit Conference concluded its sittings on Saturday afternoon. The following additional resolutions were carried at the afternoon sitting, viz.:—"That the Government be urged to at once order the closing of a large gap in the New South Wales boundary fence, and proceed as rapidly as possible with that along the South Australian border; that patrols be stationed at certain intervals along the rabbit fences for the purpose of protection and repair; that all material used for rabbit-proof and marsupial fencing be admitted into the colony free, and carried on the railways at the same rates as agricultural produce." The resolution passed on Friday was recommitted, and passed in the following amended form:—"That an area of country adjacent to the New South Wales and South Australian borders be proclaimed infested country, and on it all the resumed areas be cancelled, and they be incorporated in the leasehold areas; and that it be compulsory on all Crown tenants on that area to fence their runs into blocks not exceeding 200 square miles with approved rabbit-proof fencing, use being made of the present fences where practicable." The Conference decided to ask the Government to send some competent person to New South Wales to make full inquiries into Drs. Butcher and Ellis's system of inoculating rabbits with disease, with the view of seeing if it can be advantageously employed in Queensland. Mr. Neville Griffiths, who moved the resolution, gave a quantity of information regarding the infested districts of New South Wales and the experiments conducted by Dr. Butcher, and was accorded a hearty vote of thanks. The chairman, in closing the proceedings of the Conference, said he hoped their labours would result in such a measure being passed by Parliament as would have the effect of thoroughly checking the rabbit invasion.

ADELAIDE, SUNDAY.

The Board of Conciliation, consisting of five delegates from the Bootmakers' Union, and an equal number from the Manufacturers' Association, have come to a deadlock, owing to objection having been taken by the employers to G. Downie attending the board on behalf of the men. At a special meeting of the men last night it was pointed out that no charges had been formulated against Downie. The delegates tendered their resignations, which were accepted. Many speakers thought it best in the interests of the union that Mr. Downie should not stand again for election on the board. Mr. Downie consented to this, and fresh delegates were elected.

BRISBANE, Sunday.

In reference to the movement started recently for a handicap sculling race of £500 on the Brisbane River for all comers, Mr. Deeble, on behalf of Kemp, has expressed a willingness to row in the contest provided the handicap is not more than 5 seconds. Hanlan says he would be very glad to row in such a race, though winning it would not entitle anyone to the championship. The greater part of the money for the handicap race has already been guaranteed, and no difficulty is anticipated in raising the required amount.

A SUPPOSED CHINESE LEPER.

(By Telegraph.)
(From our correspondent.)

COOKTOWN, Saturday.

The supposed Chinese leper who was recently brought from Croydon was brought up at the police court this morning, and charged with vagrancy. Dr. Kortsum deposed that there were no symptoms of leprosy, but the man had suffered from skin disease. The man was remanded till Monday for the evidence of a second doctor. So far the man appears to have been the victim of injustice. The Bench here received no papers as to what he was charged with, or why he was sent here. The accused, who speaks good English., says he went as cook with a bullock team going from Georgetown to Normanton. He contracted fever on the road. A policeman came up and hunted him away. He had no food for four days. A doctor saw him at Tablelop, and subsequently at Croydon, where he was taken before the court and told by the police to go to Normanton alone. He stayed six miles from town for four weeks. The police then took him to German Bar, and then sent him to Maytown, and ultimately to Cooktown. He shows no sign of disease.

RICH AURIFEROUS DISCOVERIES IN WESTERN AUSTRALIA.

(By Telegraph.)
(From our correspondent.)

PERTH, Saturday.

An extraordinarily rich discovery of gold has been made in the Golden Valley country. A party under Parke and Mackie made the find. It is stated on good authority to be of great value. It is close to Rinaldy's recent discovery, and 40 miles from Coleasy's reefs. A ton of auriferous stone is being sent here for testing. It is stated to be of extraordinary richness. Specimens already brought in leave no doubt as the genuineness of the find. A large figure has been refused for a very small share in the claim. The quantity of stone is said to be beyond question, and its richness is far beyond anything yet discovered in the colony. Quartz showing gold, and freely, has been discovered at the Upper Murchison by a prospecting party. One piece crushed showed gold throughout.

A small vessel arrived yesterday from Pascoe River, bringing four European miners and 23 Chinese. The party were obliged to leave Pascoe principally from want of water. Captain Owen, master of the vessel, states that W. P. Dickie, a well-known prospector, was killed by the Island tribe of blacks while visiting the mainland. Dickie was prospecting for a Sydney syndicate. He kept aloof from the ordinary working parties, and generally went prospecting alone. The information of his murder and the plunder of his camp comes from the bush tribes.

MINERS' GRIEVANCES AT NEWCASTLE.

(By Telegraph.)
(From our correspondent.)

NEWCASTLE, Saturday.

Mr. James Fletcher, M.L.A., met a deputation from the South Waratah miners, with Mr. R. Goundry and Mr. James Curley (district chairman and general secretary) this morning, in reference to the dispute between them and the company. The men expressed themselves as being prepared to accept fair remuneration for work, and had no intention to take advantage of their late employers. It is understood that Mr. Fletcher, on his return to Sydney, will again interview the directors of the company. The people here are confident that he will be able to bring the dispute to a termination.

SUNDAY.

According to a telegram received late last night by the Sydney delegate in Newcastle, the reorganisation of the miners of the Illawarra district is progressing favourably; it is believed that should the impending general strike take place, the miners in that district will be sufficiently organised to be able to resist any attempt to supply vessels which have been refused by the coal trimmers to trim their coal in Newcastle if hewn by non-union men.

The South Waratah miners met yesterday, and resolved that Mr. S. Frith be added to the deputation to meet the directors, as he was on the first deputation. The rumour that nine "blacklegs" had been seen near the colliery was stated to be untrue.

At a meeting of the A. A. Company's miners last night, a deputation waited upon Mr. J. Gregson and Mr. Turnbull, the general superintendent and manager. They reported that those gentlemen declined to alter the schedule price at the sea pit, which they had submitted to the men, and which the men decline to be below the district rates. The matter was fully discussed by the lodge, and a resolution was passed that a special delegate meeting be called to deal with this case. In the meantime, the men will not go to work at the sea pit at the company's prices, and a resolution was passed that the lodge support them till the case is dealt with by the district. The point is that the miners do not wish the sea pit to come under a separate category from all the other collieries of the A. A. Company, and the management wish to treat it differently as regards prices. A motion was also moved,—"That the time has arrived when the associated masters and miners should meet for the purpose of drawing up a general agreement, and in the event of the masters refusing to comply, that 14 days' notice be given by the district to compel them to do so." A long discussion ensued. The motion was carried with the exception of the latter part, recommending a general strike, and the motion was ordered to be laid before the district. A motion was also agreed to that the miners from the Wollongong district, and known to have been "blacklegging" there during the late strike, be fined £10 before joining the Miners' Association in this district.

SUDDEN DEATH AT THE PENRITH RAILWAY STATION.

(By Telegraph.)
(From our correspondent.)

PENRITH, Sunday.

A shockingly sudden death occurred on the railway station on Saturday morning. A railway guard named Jas. Trives, a married man, assisted at the passenger train and afterwards completed the making up of his own train. Up to that time he appeared to be in perfect health. He stood away from the train with the object of giving the signal to the driver to start, and he was then noticed by some of his fellow-employees to drop down, apparently in a fit. The men quickly brought him to the guards' quarters, where Dr. Scott, who was sent for, pronounced life to be extinct. The doctor had previously prescribed for deceased, and had warned him not to get excited or it would be fatal to him. The matter was reported to the coroner, and an inquest has been dispensed with.

THE WEATHER.

On Saturday the weather was quite as cold as that of the previous days, but it was far more agreeable, for the strong, boisterous, westerly wind had evidently blown itself out, although the little wind that did remain came from the same direction. Yesterday proved a most beautiful day; it was quite warm in the sunshine, which for the time of year is somewhat exceptional. In the country the weather does not seem to have changed as much as it has in the metropolis. Rain is still badly wanted, and the farmers are commencing to complain. In some localities the weather is bitterly cold, and hard frosts are experienced at night time.

The numerous medical testimonials and increasing use, after 30 years' trial, of Cadbury's Cocoa Essence, proclaim its excellence as an article of diet.—(Advt.)

CAMDEN, Saturday.

The bazaar in connection with the Primitive Methodist Church was a great success. The Hon. Thomas Garrett was to have opened the bazaar, but his parliamentary and official duties prevented him from coming.

Some visitors from Victoria interested in dairying pursuits paid a visit to the Camden Butter Factory to-day. They were shown round by the secretary, and expressed themselves highly pleased with the factory system. Mr. W. Jones, of Melbourne, one of the party, intends starting a co-operative factory in a dairying district 10 miles from Melbourne. He advocates butter-making without the use of water. This process should prove a saving of labour. Through the Camden A., H., and I. Society he offers £5 for the best butter made under this process.

FORBES, Saturday.

At a meeting of the committee of the Crown Tenants' Union of Forbes, which was held yesterday, it was decided to take a second case into the Supreme Court, to test the legality of the Minister's action in raising the rents of conditional leases (under the 49th clause of the Land Act) above the rents determined by the Local Land Boards.

GRAFTON, Saturday.

Mr. N. B. Downing will on Monday evening commence a series of lectures on local option, to be held throughout the district.

Last night was the heaviest frost experienced for several years. Bananas, tomatoes, and all such vegetation were frost bitten, and it is feared the visitation will injure the young sugar-cane.

The Colonial Sugar Company will engage their hands for this season's work on July 13, and, as in former years, they announce that they give preference to those working in former years.

The Mayor will again introduce the water supply question at the next meeting of the borough council.

Those who have taken shares in the proposed Co-operative Butchering Company have decided not to start the company at present, but to endeavour to obtain an allotment of more shares, and then, if occasion requires it, to commence operations.

The first Sunday in July has been fixed as hospital Sunday for collections of the various churches.

LISMORE, Saturday.

General satisfaction is expressed here at the intimation that the Government are favourably disposed towards Sir John Coode's scheme for the improvement of the bar, and also that they are disposed to push on with the railway works.

Sharp frosts have occurred during the last three nights. The days are fine and warm.

LIVERPOOL, Saturday.

Messrs. Varney Parkes and T. W. Taylor lectured here last night, the former on "The Life and Times of the Earl of Beaconsfield," the latter on "The Life and Times of W. E. Gladstone." Both lecturers showed how that by ability, perseverance, and indomitable pluck both statesmen realised the dream of their early days, and attained the object of their ambition. The lectures were well received. The proceeds were in aid of a widow whose husband was accidentally shot. Alderman Ashcroft presided.

PENRITH, Sunday.

The Sydney Hunt Club visited here yesterday, and had a most successful run.

The weather is exceedingly cold night and morning, with heavy frosts. Rain is badly needed.

The Rev. J. M'Neal commenced a week's mission here last Friday.

TUMBERUMBA, Saturday.

Three days' rain was followed last night by a heavy fall of snow, which lay a depth of 3in. Snow, hail, and light rains fell alternately to-day. The ground is now thoroughly saturated.

Farming operations are very backward, owing to the want of the late summer rains.

WAGGA WAGGA, Saturday.

Mr. Michael Austin Donnelly, of Boroughbda, died last night from inflammation of the lungs. He was 43 years of age.

The Mayor has convened a public meeting in compliance with a requisition for Monday evening, to consider the omission by the Government in their railway policy of the construction of a line from Wagga to Tumberumba, and to urge the Executive through the members for the district to reconsider their decision.

WILCANNIA, Saturday.

The weather, which had been bleak and windy in the early part of the week, has changed to calm, but there are still cold and colder nights. Rain which threatened did not come, and unfortunately for the pastoral interest it is so advanced that even if rain does come, unless it be immediately, its results will not be so satisfactory as they would have been earlier.

YASS, Saturday.

Mr. W. H. Freeman, who opened the branch of the Bank of New South Wales at Yass, as manager, has been appointed manager to that bank at Goulburn. He leaves Yass next week.

AMUSEMENTS.

THE CRITERION THEATRE.

The air of southern Italy breathes through the play of "Romeo and Juliet." Italy invented the charming love story, and Italy with her old family feuds and bloody quarrels, and with her impetuous and fiery passion, is the very spirit of the creation. Juliet and Romeo are purely Italian. Juliet, wanting in foresight, but possessing abundance of vitality and passion, and though tender and beautiful, having heroic strength as compared with the weakness of the effeminate Romeo, who has been described as resembling "a reed in the storm, borne hither and thither in the delirium of fear and hope," is the very incarnation of passion or love. Miss Essie Jenyns, in the presence of a crowded audience at the Criterion Theatre on Saturday evening, demonstrated that she had firmly grasped the true idea of the character. Three scenes may be instanced in which Miss Jenyns displayed much excellence. These, which are as different as possible from one another, were the balcony scene, the meeting with the old nurse who has returned from Romeo bringing a very important message to Juliet, and the scene in her bed-chamber when Juliet takes the magic draught. A number of beautiful floral wreaths and bouquets were handed up to Miss Jenyns, and amongst other presents was a magnificent crown made of choice white flowers and mounted on a white satin cushion. On the cushion were the letters "E. J." (Miss Jenyns' monogram) elegantly worked in gold and enclosed by a laurel wreath in gold. Streamers of white ribbon contained quotations from Othello and Cymbeline, that from the latter being "Safe mayest thou wander, safe return again." This present was from Mrs. A. H. White (Miss Myra Kemble). The impatient boy Romeo was represented on this occasion by Mr. Robert Inman, Mr. W. J. Holloway, who has played it hitherto, having no place in the cast. Mr. Inman showed that he had given some study to the character, for he knew the dialogue well, and was not guilty of any gaucheries such as might have been expected in a first attempt, but he did not catch the spirit of the part, and was, in fact, dispassionate. Mr. Inman received great encouragement from the audience, and this should stimulate him to further and deeper study of the character. Nothing could be better than Miss Kate Arden's (Mrs. W. J. Holloway's) acting as the nurse to Juliet, and she was almost a rival with Miss Jenyns in the appreciation of the audience. Mr. A. Norman was splendid as Friar Laurence, and Mr. R. Stewart as Mercutio. Mr. A. E. Greenaway, as Count of Paris, and Mr. H. Hodson, as Capulet, did very well. The minor characters received the attention and consideration due to them, and the scenery and stage management did not detract from the efficiency of the production. "Romeo and Juliet" will be repeated this evening.

THEATRE ROYAL.

The powerful sensational drama, "The World," continues nightly to attract crowded audiences to the Theatre Royal, and the last six nights of the piece are now announced. The eccentricities of that comical Jewish villain, Moses Jewell, as portrayed by Mr. Bland Holt, are a source of intense amusement to the audience, and Mrs. Bland Holt's quiet and finished impersonation of the heroine, Mary Blyth, is equally pleasing. Miss Myra Kemble makes the most of her somewhat limited opportunities as Mabel Huntingford, and Miss Maude Fredericks is a splendidly audacious and plucky little boy. Indeed, the acting throughout is first-class; but it is rather by reason of its sensational scenic effects that the drama maintains its hold on the public. The tableaux are numerous and striking in their realism, and the scenery and mechanical effects are marvellous illustrations of the extent to which realistic drama has now been carried.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.

The "Two Orphans" still continues to hold the stage at this theatre, and large audiences nightly applaud the acting of Mr. George Rignold as the villainous brother Jacques, and the refined and pathetic version of Louise which Miss Maggie Knight gives. Notwithstanding its success the "Two Orphans" is to be withdrawn at the end of this week, to make room for the production, on Saturday next, of Mr. G. R. Sims' original drama, "The Lights of London." The piece will be staged on a scale of magnificence, Mr. George Rignold himself appearing in the leading part, whilst Miss Roland Watts - Phillips will make her reappearance in Sydney after an absence of three years. Mr. J. R. Greville will also reappear, and the remainder of the characters will be filled by a strong company. Among the novel effects to be produced will be real water in the scenes.

THE OPERA HOUSE.

Harry Rickard's Comedy and Speciality Company drew a very large audience at the Opera House on Saturday, when a change of programme was given. The sketch, which was entitled "Brice-a-Brac," showed the talents and peculiarities of himself and artists to special advantage. "Harry" took a large number of characters, from a beggar to a "machine king," and was successful in all. As Sergeant Quibbles, Q.C., a "legal luminary," he was irresistible, and gained an encore for his well-known song, "His Lordship Winked at the Counsel." Mr. Fred. Davys, Mr. James Bell, and Mr. Wm. Woodland, rendered valuable assistance. Miss Kate St. Laurence (a Burlesque star), Miss M. Constance (a Lancashire lass), Miss Ada D'Alroy (a Spanish dancer), Miss Georgie Devoe (a masher), and Miss Kate Leete (a daisy), not only took these special parts, but also several others. The incidents are varied and numerous, and there is fun and comicality from beginning to end, so that "Brice-a-Brac" should have a long run.

THE STANDARD THEATRE.

The revival of Boucicault's "Janet Pride" after the drama had been relegated to obscurity for a sufficiently long period to bring it within the category of venerable and almost forgotten dramatic efforts, was witnessed at the Standard Theatre on Saturday by a fairly well filled house, and the piece was played successfully throughout. Miss Agnes Thomas, who made a very favourable impression when she first visited Sydney some years ago, appeared as Janet Pride, and furnished abundant evidence not only that she still retains the power which established for her a reputation in Sydney originally as an emotional actress, but that her talent for comedy is undiminished. Miss Thomas's pathetic acting in the prologue of the drama, in which Janet, dying from want and neglect, resolves to part with her child in order that its life might be saved, could not but have affected the audience, whose feelings were, doubtless, relieved when the curtain short time afterwards rose representing the unhappy mother lying dead in the snow. An interval of 20 years is supposed to have elapsed between the prologue and the first act, and Janet Pride, the daughter, now grown to womanhood, is a vivacious and artless damsel, who rules the members of Monsieur Bernard's family, with whom her lot is cast, with pretty imperiousness. The part is, of course, a striking contrast to that depicted in the prologue, but Miss Thomas was quite equal to the task, nor was she wanting in the necessary force in the closing acts of the drama in which Janet suffers and triumphs. On several occasions during the performance Miss Thomas was called before the curtain, and at the close of the second act she was presented with a handsome bouquet. Miss Eva Clements as Minnie Grey satisfied all the part, but she should endeavour to be a little less stilted in the dialogue. Mr. J. F. West, though somewhat heavy, made a presentable Richard Pride, and Mr. J. J. Welsh was effective as Monsieur Bernard. As Black Jack Mr. Fred. Jack had little to do, as his career of villainy was brought to a premature close. He, however, acted with care, though he must have felt anything but comfortable in a character in such striking contrast to his ordinary line of business. Mr. Edwin Lester managed to get a good deal of fun out of the part of Dickey Trotter, and Mr. D. Royle made a dignified Rector. The minor parts were also adequately represented. The management of the Standard Theatre have more than once been complimented upon the mounting of their pieces, considering the limited space at their command, and they appear to have bestowed considerable care in this respect in the production of "Janet Pride." The set in the first act, representing the winehouse of a street in Paris, and the foundling hospital, is an excellent one; and in the second act Mr. Edward Waugh, the scenic artist, gave a very realistic idea of an Australian bush scene, with a rocky gorge and real waterfall in the foreground, and hundreds of feet below a thickly-timbered valley, along which a stream meanders until it is lost in the dim perspective. "Janet Pride" should draw large audiences during the week.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

Mr. Frank M. Clark's new All Star Combination opened a brief season at the Academy of Music on Saturday evening to a house that was literally packed, scarcely standing room being available. The entertainment was such that the audience was kept in a continued state of hilarity and good humour. The first part partook somewhat of the Ethopian nigro business, the corner men, Messrs. W. Whitburn and W. J. Cameron, arrived, being assisted by lady artistes, besides Mr. E. A. Glover, who was the interlocutor, and the whole rendered some excellent ballads and comic songs, which received well-merited applause. The corner men as usual were very humorous and funny. An amusing finale to the first part, entitled "The Two Bobbies," convulsed the house. The second part of the entertainment was of a variety character, and the most striking item in the programme was the clever performance of the Brothers Donaldson, who have very rightly been termed "human box contortions and physiological wonders," who gave an exhibition of the most extraordinary contortions. Possibly the most remarkable feat performed by the brothers was that where one of them stood upon a stool and worked his body from the hips right round and faced the other way, thus bringing his head and shoulders facing to the right while his toes pointed in the immediately opposite direction. Mr. E. A. Glover, a mimic and humourist, in his panel phot graphs was very clever, and met with much applause. The company comprises song and dance artists, burlesque comedians, and artists known for their specialities, the whole of whom are clever. Although the Combination will not remain in Sydney long a successful and remunerative season is anticipated.

THE ALHAMBRA.

The Alhambra drew as big a house on Saturday night as it has ever done before, and there is no reason to doubt that with the present excellence of the entertainment it will maintain as great a share of popularity for the future as it has in the past. The ballads given by Misses Kingsley, Schuler, Neville, Wilson, and Martin, and Messrs. Santley, Spencer, Ryan, and Barrington were thoroughly enjoyable, and the negro minstrel comic songs and dances were equally meritorious. Messrs. Hanson and Field, the "Musical Kings," and Sylvo, the "Innovator," were conspicuous in an excellent performance. There will be a change of programme this evening.

JUNGFRAU KAPELLE.

This talented company of Swiss vocalists brought their Sydney season to a close in the Gaiety Theatre on Saturday night. Their performance was attended by a large audience, who vociferously applauded many of the items in the long and interesting programme.

WIRTH'S CIRCUS.

Wirth's Circus was again filled to its utmost holding capacity on Saturday night by a delighted and enthusiastic audience. From the opening spectacular piece till the final efforts of the accomplished artistes the large assemblage was kept alternately in applause and laughter, the interest being maintained throughout with unflagging spirit. There were many changes in the programme from those previously given, and novelties of such a character introduced as to give rise to an amount of conjecture and wonder as to the source from which so many varieties flowed. The changes effected by the clever Wirth family are a complete refutation of the assertion that circus performances are all alike. Beside the new attractions on Saturday night, Miss Marizles Wirth repeated her remarkable feats on the invisible wire, introducing her bevy of pigeons, and providing one of the prettiest acts imaginable. The whole concluded with a steeplechase of a very exciting nature. This week is announced positively as the last.

THE SKATING RINKS.

The pastime of skating is rapidly increasing in popularity, and despite the large addition which has within the last few weeks been made to the number of rinks, all the city and suburban institutions continue to be well supported. Perhaps the most successful of the many ventures is the Crystal Palace Rink, which is situate near the Opera House in York-street. This rink is carried out on a scale of magnitude which excites the wonderment of people who have no acquaintance with the conditions of skating as it is carried on in older countries. The building is brilliantly illuminated with electric lights, the interior having installed therein something like 200 incandescent lamps and the exterior being rendered conspicuous by three powerful arc lamps. The various departments of the rink are under the supervision of three or four experts in the art of skating, and the comfort and enjoyment of patrons are further contributed to by a staff of attendants, numbering upwards of 30. The rink was only opened on Thursday night, but the place has already won such a degree of popularity that the attendance up to Saturday evening had aggregated nearly 15,000. Mr. Wybard, the manager, is deserved with are close of which his patrons believe, and is determined to do all in his power to prevent the intrusion amongst them of persons whose association might not be altogether agreeable. Acting upon this principle, he, we are informed, had on Saturday evening no less than 200 intending visitors turned away. Another institution, which challenges admiration because of its magnitude, the brilliancy of its decorations, and the excellence of its management, is the Sydney Elite Skating Rink, which is situate in Elizabeth and Bedford streets, Redfern, in the neighbourhood of the Exhibition Building. The number of patrons last week reached about 10,000, one-third of whom participated in the pleasures derivable from Saturday's sessions. Mr. K. A. Skinner, the genial manager, is now perfecting the arrangements connected with the imposing carnival which is to take place to-morrow evening. Mr. Skinner has already won as an entrepreneur a considerable reputation for the spirited manner in which carnivals at the Exhibition Building, but he says he is determined that the fête of to-morrow night shall, to a considerable degree, surpass them in brilliancy. He has already had some rehearsals for the grand march, and the results, he says, fully justify him in anticipating a spectacular display which will be of a most imposing character. The building will, as on nightly the case, be brilliantly illuminated with incandescent lamps, and the music will be supplied by the Naval Artillery Volunteer Band, consisting of 50 musicians. In the grand march and procession, 300 couples, in fancy, burlesque, national, and evening dress costumes, will take part. To give proper effect to the evolutions of this assemblage the electric light will for the time being give way to limelights, which will be manipulated so as to cast upon the skaters all the beautiful effects of the prismatic colours. The skaters will first traverse the centre of the floor in two single files, then return four abreast, next advance in 16's, and return in a column of 32 abreast. The other manœuvres will include serpentine skating, so as to intersle with the pillars of the building. At a later period of the evening Mr. R. J. Agnew, the "champion of champions," will give an exhibition of artistic and trick skating. Of the other suburban institutions the St. George's Hall Rink, at Newtown, has during the past week received a very liberal amount of patronage. The City Rink (Old Masonic Hall) in York-street, Sydney, maintains its popularity. This institution attracts many skaters, not alone because of the excellence of the management, but on account of the pleasure it affords. Imagine yourself on a glide over the floor, which is of asphaltum, presenting a surface of extreme smoothness, and is said to absolutely forbid the possibility of any skater inhaling any more dust than may during the evening be carried about the garments of visitors into the building. The Paragon Rink, No. 409, Pitt-street, also receives a goodly share of patronage, as also do the rinks at the Water Bowl, Botany; the rink at the Ashfield Recreation Grounds; the rink at the Sydney C. Hall, Princes-street; and the Palace Skating Rink, at the corner of Walker and Cleveland streets, Redfern.

THE AQUARIUMS.

The three aquariums, at Manly, Bondi, and Coogee, were all well patronised by visitors on Saturday and yesterday. The first-named, which is the oldest established, and which still claims to possess the best collection of marine curiosities, sustained a severe loss on Sunday in the untimely death of its biggest, though not its oldest inhabitant. The largest of the two deep-water sharks, an 8-ft. monster, which for some days past has shown unmistakable signs and symptoms of its approaching end, finally turned on its back and, in full view of two aged monkeys, expired without a struggle, deeply regretted by the management, and possibly also by its sole companion and survivor, which was captured on the same day, the 9th April last. The latter, which has now for two months and two weeks occupied the shark-tank, is still lively. It is between five and six feet in length. Very few have been kept alive in the tank for so long a period. It does not appear to be generally known that the Manly Aquarium is open on Sundays, when the curtain is drawn and the scene representing the unhappy mother lying dead in the snow. An interval of 20 years is supposed to have elapsed between the prologue and the first act, and Janet Pride, the daughter, now grown to womanhood, is a vivacious and artless damsel, who rules the members of Monsieur Bernard's family, with whom her lot is cast, with pretty imperiousness. Miss Peate. "With a Laugh," for female voices only, was given with so pleasing an effect the a repeat was demanded. A trio, "Allegro," andante and finale, by Mozart, for piano, violin, and violoncello was faithfully performed by the Musical Directress, Mr. Rive, and Mr. Sid Deane. This number showed careful study, and a correct interpretation of the composer's music. Mr. Herbert H. Rive played a violin solo, "Les Adieux de Marie Antoinette" (Giorza), with such skill that he completely captivated his audience, and as an encore gave an exquisite rendering of Miska Hauser's "Slumber song," and narrowly escaped a second re-call. Miss Peate sang "Stay with Me" (Mattei), and in response to an enthusiastic demand, gave in a finished style, Tosti's "Good-bye." Mr. Summers Brown, who possesses a rich bass voice, was a success in Pinsuti's "I Fear no Foe." The part song "Good Night" brought to a close the first year of the Mossman's Bay Musical Union," and the promoters should be well satisfied with the result.

Madame Charbonnet-Kellerman will give her second recital of Chopin's pianoforte compositions this evening, at the Y. M. C. A. Hall.

It will be seen by an advertisement elsewhere that, owing to the sudden illness of the leading soprano, the performance announced by the Sydney Private Dramatic and Operatic Society is unavoidably postponed until Monday, July 2.

On Wednesday next, at the New Masonic Hall, a complimentary benefit will be given by the Federal Amateur Minstrels to Mr. Martyn Hagan, the popular Irish comedian and vocalist.

Our Melbourne correspondent telegraphs as follows:—The French Comedy Company gave a matinee performance on Saturday, at the evening they played "Le Deputé de Bombignac" on the stage. The performances were excellent, and there were large and appreciative audiences. Amy Sherwin continues successful at the Opera House. The "Pirates of the Regiment" was performed on Saturday night. The last performance of "The Tomboy" was given at the Theatre Royal on Friday evening. On Saturday night "The Miner's Daughter" was put on the stage, with Carrie Swain in the leading character. St. George's Hall is crowded nightly to witness the Coghill Brothers in "Skipped by the Light of the Moon." At the Victoria Hall F. M. Clarke's new company is a great draw with "Our Footballers. Liberal patronage is accorded to Brough and Boucicault's "Jim the Penman" at the Bijou. "Monte Christo, Jun." continues to be played at the Princess'. Miss Finkelstein closed her first series of lectures by a matinee on Saturday, when large numbers were unable to gain admission. She visits Gippsland to recruit, and commences her country tour next week. Miss Finkelstein will leave for Sydney on August 2, giving her first lecture there on the 6th. The Town Hall was filled on Saturday night on the occasion of a complimentary concert to Madame Schiller, who played with great brilliancy, and was loaded with floral tributes. The Governor and Lady Loch were present.

We learn by telegram from our Adelaide correspondent that Mr. Charles Warner opened to a crowded house on Saturday night, in "Drink."

CASUALTIES.

A young man named George Elliott, aged 19, was driving a butcher's cart along Burwood-road, Burwood, on Friday evening, when the vehicle came in contact with a heap of metal, gathered by the corporation employees, causing it to capsize. The unfortunate man was thrown out and jammed under the cart. Upon medical aid being summoned, it was discovered that his right leg had been fractured above the knee. The sufferer was removed to the residence of his employer, Mr. J. Bullen, of Burwood.

On Saturday last a man named John M'Carthy was treated at the Sydney Hospital for a lacerated wound on the forehead, which he received through having fallen from an omnibus in George-street.

A woman named Alice Smith was found lying on the footpath of George-street yesterday by Police-constable Williamson, of No. 4 Station. He removed her to the Sydney Hospital, where on being admitted she became very violent and went off into a series of fits. On being examined by one of the medical staff, she was found to be suffering from a large contusion of the scalp and an injury to her right eye.

Shortly before noon yesterday, Police Constable Castle found a Chinaman, whose name could not be ascertained, lying in an insensible condition on Lord's-road, at North Botany. The Mongolian's lips were smeared with opium, and on being searched an empty horn jar, which bore evidence of having contained a small quantity of the drug, together with the sum of 5s. 2½d., was found in his pockets. He was taken to the Sydney Hospital, and was attended by Dr. Henry, who discovered that the patient was suffering from narcotic poisoning, and he applied the stomach pump and administered an antidote, but up till a late hour last night his condition remained almost unaltered.

Whilst the ferry steamer Eagle was proceeding on its trip to Parramatta at about 8 o'clock last Saturday night, one of the firemen, named Frederick Ashton, fell overboard, and was drowned. The vessel at the time was passing between the Brothers, when the man in hauling a bucket over the side of the boat lost his balance and dropped into the water. Immediately on the occurrence becoming known on board the steamer, the engines were stopped, and every endeavour made to find the man, but no traces of his body could be found, and the vessel afterwards continued its course. The Water Police were communicated with, and they were dragging for the body during yesterday, but without success, and their operations will be resumed to-day.

A man named John Connors was found lying dead in bed yester

NEW BOOKS.

The Tragedy of Dwald's Glen; or the Shadow of the Cross, by Laurel Barrington, is described on the title-page as a story of Irish and Australian life. It is a novelette of 124 pages, with three illustrations, and resolves itself into the life-story of a young man of high lineage dating from the time of Cœur de Lion, who conferred on the founder of the family "the right royal gift of Glendruid, so called because of those whose cloud enjoined them to pray 'neath the stately oaks and hoary mistletoe." The quotation sufficiently indicates the style of the writer, who proceeds in this way to tell of what befell a young man who slew his brother, in chapters that deal largely in death-bed descriptions and much harrowing incident. There is enough incident in this little book to supply several modern dramas, though a good deal of its tragical effect is toned down by the fact that the story is told in the pluperfect tense throughout. If the plot on the whole is somewhat involved, th s is so much in favour of the unwearied patience and industry of the writer. This consecutious working-out of the plot leaves little time for an elaborate study of character, but there is a a "Sachem" named Ivan Sartoris here, who bears a character of such conflicting attributes that the reader is intensely gratified to find him stealthily conveying the fratricide on board his magnificent yacht, the Light of the Harem, in the second last chapter, and so disappearing over the horizon. This little book bears ample testimony to the laborious earnestness of the writer, and her energetic confidence in the public for which she writes.

Whispering Echoes is a small volume of verses by Edward Candish. It is prefaced by an extract from an unpublished tragedy of the writer's, to be called "The Belle of the Bottomless Pit." The stanza that follows, from a poem with the rather ambiguous title of "To Lunatic," gives a fair idea of what is characteristic in Mr. Candish's muse:—

"The waters sweet of thy trickling rills,
New bathe the feet of giant hills,
Whose veins are charged with gold.
The delving worker, hardships cope,
His lamp he trims from burning hope
The prospects to behold."

There is a subtle fineness of thought running through these lines that the casual reader might easily miss. "Children among Shavings," on the other hand, is a simple lyric that he who runs may read:—

"Making shavings, prattling loudly,
O, what joy to be as you!
Scrambling for the turned o'er chippings,
Every evening's sweet renew."

"The Mopoke," again, is a brief address to that New Zealand fowl, in which the poet somewhat wildly enquires,—

"Oh, grey mopoke, why constantly dost thou
Love but to rove upon night's ebon brow?"

A question which may well plunge the most light-minded bird into pensive meditation, and give it food for serious thought. There are other verses in the book, and some exceedingly bold and courageous figures of speech, such as a "laughing joy set wild in wreath of smile." But the poems as a whole are not likely to create a sensation. If there is anything more painful than the spectacle of a person oppressed with a vain belief in his own poetical inspiration, it is surely the effort to tell him so.

The New South Wales portion of Street's Indian and Colonial Directory contains a condensed historical account of the colony, its industries, railways, and general statistics, with a list of the principal towns, the text of the Customs Duties Act of 1886, and schedules of the Imports. The population of Sydney with suburbs is given at 250,000; and the number of vessels in port for the half year is given at 897, with a tonnage of 806,233. Some information respecting the passenger rates between Sydney and Europe by the various lines follows, with a trade directory of the city of Sydney and suburbs.

THE LAW OF DIVORCE.

Yesterday evening, at St. Andrew's Cathedral, the Very Rev. Dean Cowper delivered a discourse upon the subject of "Divorce." There was a large attendance. The rev. gentleman based his remarks upon the following text:—"They say unto him, why did Moses then command to give a writing of divorcement and to put her away? He saith unto them, Moses because of the hardness of your hearts suffered you to put away your wives, but from the beginning it was not so. And I say unto you, whosoever shall put away his wife, except it be for fornication, and shall marry another, committeth adultery; and whoso marrieth her which is put away doth commit adultery."—Matthew, xix., 7, 8, and 9. In his preliminary remarks Dean Cowper repeated the main points referred to by him a fortnight ago in a discourse upon the subject of marriage, and, after having dealt in an exhaustive manner with the teachings of Christ and the writings of St. Paul in relation to the law of divorce, he stated that unfaithfulness to the marriage vow was the only ground on which divorce was allowed by the law of God. Human laws might decide otherwise. The only ground which could be found for departing from the law laid down by Christ in the Gospel was the ground arising from what was termed "expediency." Those who were now labouring for an extension of the law of divorce were, they all knew, actuated by benevolent motives. Having heard and known of many cases of distress and cruelty, they desired to afford relief. But it was a dangerous thing to attempt to afford such relief by legislation which ignored the law of the Divine Master. It was a dangerous thing to oppose by legislation the law of our Divine Master, who had foreseen all the suffering which would come to pass, and had enacted his law with a full knowledge of it. It might be that the legislation now attempted in this colony might remedy some evils, but it might be that there was in it the seed of ten times greater evils than those attempted to be cured. In loosening the matrimonial bonds a vast mischief might be produced, and the remedy might be worse than the disease. Wicked men and women might be led to pursue their evil courses with greater boldness, in order to bring about that which they desired, and so an impulse would be given to unbridled passions, greater cruelty and oppression, and greater trials than were now felt. It might also bring about in society a great loosening of morals and evil principles of life and action. If he had read history aright, such was the result in the Roman Empire. The great principle upon which they took their stand in opposing an extension of the law of divorce was that such extension was contrary to the Divine law as laid down by Christ. As God was a God of wisdom, of justice, and of love, whatever law he ordained was the best for man, and the wisest and most conducive to our good. All the evils of the world had sprung from disobedience to the laws of God, and all the good in the world had been produced by obedience to the laws of God. Nations prospered just in proportion as they governed themselves or were governed in accordance with these laws, and practised the principles laid down by God in his moral law. The worst thing that could befall a nation, educated as we were in these laws, would be the setting of them aside in order to proceed on human policy, regardless of the wisdom, love, and goodness of that God who sought to guide and direct us by His word. He feared that in this colony we had fallen very much into that condition, that we were legislating and living without a due regard to the teaching of the Bible, and were consequently suffering in many ways. In conclusion, he appealed to his hearers to accept Christ as the proper authority, and God's word as a revelation of His will.

CORONER'S INQUEST.

DETERMINED SUICIDE IN THE DOMAIN.

An inquest was held by the City Coroner at the South Sydney Morgue on Saturday, touching the death of Patrick Bergen, aged 59, who was found at 8 a.m. the previous day, near the Ladies' Baths in the Domain, with his throat cut. He was discovered, lying face downwards, by Thomas Chambers, ironmonger, of George-street, who reported the matter to the police. When examined by Constable Payne, who proceeded at once to the spot indicated by Chambers, deceased had two deep jagged wounds in his throat, evidently inflicted with a razor which was found close to the body. The letters "P. H." were engraved on the blade of the razor. There was also a wound on the left arm. Deceased, who was addicted to intemperate habits, had a family of seven children, whom his wife alone supported, as he had for three years lived apart from her. He had been employed as a coach-driver at Wagga, but for some time of late he was out of work. George A. Bramston, of 717, George-street, licensed victualler, who had known deceased since 1856, said he was at one time managing partner of the firm of Crawford and Connolly, coach proprietors, Victoria. Dr. Milford said he found two wounds in deceased's throat, one of which extended completely across the neck, and also a cut near the elbow of the left arm. The jugular vein was severed, and the right hand and fore arm were covered with blood. The wounds might have been self-inflicted, and they showed great determination on deceased's part to destroy his life. The witness Chambers said the man was dead when discovered; his clothing was not disarranged; there was much blood on the ground near him; he did not touch the body. Constable Payne described to the jury the state of the body, which was not quite cold when he found it; the sleeves of the coat and shirt sleeves were rolled up above the left elbow; he said at about 10 o'clock on Tuesday night he spoke to deceased in the Domain; Bergen, who was sober, asked him if he would be locked up if he remained there any longer; witness told him he would not if he kept from drink; he was then lying on the grass in company with another man. Mrs. Bergen informed the jury that her late husband drank to excess, almost to madness, and from that cause alone she was compelled to live apart from him; she had not seen him to speak to him for 12 months. The jury returned a verdict to the effect that deceased committed suicide by cutting his throat.

COMMERCIAL.

ENGLISH MONETARY AND COMMERCIAL.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

LONDON, MAY 18.

Almost from the hour of the advance in the official minimum last week the money market became easier, and this week opened with lower rates under an abundance of floating capital and the prospect of a large return of gold to this country from abroad. £39,000 in bar gold was sent into the bank on Saturday and a further £74,000 was bought on Monday. On Tuesday it was announced that £100,000 in gold, was engaged to be shipped from New York for Europe. Short loans were obtainable on Monday at 1½ to 1¾ per cent., and three months' bills quoted at 2¼. A little firmness set in about the middle of the week, but the supply of money has since again become abundant, and above rates rule to-day. Since last week's return £105,000 has been sent in on balance. Consols have declined; the new 2¾ per cents. receded on Wednesday to 99 to 99⅞ for money, and 99⅞ to 99½ for the account, which is the lowest point yet touched. Old Consols, 3 per cents., 101 to 101⅛ for money, which are to-day's prices. In stocks and shares but little business has been done. The Servian insurrection reported at the end of last week proved to be a false alarm, and nothing has since occurred to rouse the House from its lethargy. Members have been standing about idle for want of business, and many left town early for the Whitsuntide holidays. The recent rush for investments in high-class securities is over, and its effect upon the Government stocks of Australia is shown in the declining values. New South Wales 3½ per cents., which reached 107¾ at their highest point, now stand at 103½, a decline of 4¼ per cent.; New Zealand Fours, 104½, now 97½, a decline of 7 per cent.; Victorian Fours, 113¾, now 112; South Australian, 109, now 107½; and Queensland, 108¾, now 106½, with nominal transactions.

Australian bank shares show little change, the principal alterations being an advance of 1 in English, Scottish, and Australian Chartered, and a decline of 1 in Bank of New Zealand. Other figures stand the same as last week's quotations, with the exception of Bank of New South Wales, which are now quoted ex dividend at 65 to 67.

Bar silver has this week declined to 42d. per oz. This price was once before touched in August, 1886, and is the lowest price ever hitherto known. In noticing this fact, Messrs. Sharps and Wilkins say—"The conditions of the market were then somewhat different from the present, as then the price fell one penny without intervening business, and very rapidly recovered, whereas the present fall has been steady and continuous." With a limited supply of Mexican dollars transactions have taken place at 41½ per oz. Bar silver has still further declined to 41½ per oz.

The report of the London Chartered Bank of Australia states that the balance of profit and loss now to be dealt with is £64,435, out of which the directors recommend that a dividend be declared for the half-year at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum free of income tax, £35,000; that £20,000 be transferred to the reserve fund, making £180,000; and that the balance be carried forward to next account, £9433.

The prospectus is issued of the Pacific Islands Trading Company, with a capital of £120,000 in 80,000 10 per cent. preferred shares and 40,000 deferred shares, all of £1 each.

The Australian Pearl-fishing Company is registered, capital £50,100, divided into 50,000 £1 shares and 100 founders' shares of £1 each, with the object of carrying on the business of pearling and pearl-fishing in Australian waters or elsewhere, and to deal in pearls, pearl-shells, and any other products of the sea.

The annual report of the Pacific Steam Navigation Company shows a balance to the credit of profit and loss account of £191,133, out of which a dividend of 17s. per share has been paid, absorbing £56,222, leaving £140,911 undivided profit at the beginning of 1888.

The flood of public companies poured upon this market was referred to in my letter of 20th April, showing the companies registered from 2nd January to 16th April represented a nominal capital of over £99,000,000, but the figures for the past month beat the record. The number of companies registered at Somerset House during the month of April is 416, and the aggregate of capitals £121,658,314.

The Intercolonial Conference on Sugar Bounties held its concluding meeting on Saturday last, at the Foreign Office. The final protocol in the draft convention was signed by all the representatives. The delegates will now submit the draft treaty, with the reservations they have made, to their respective Governments, who will communicate their views to her Majesty's Government by 5th July. The plenipotentiaries will be invited to meet on 16th August, at latest, to sign the treaty.

The Financial News under this date says:—"Two gentlemen presented themselves at Somerset House yesterday for the purpose of registering a company with a capital of £32,000,000. They were politely informed that the papers were in perfect order, but under the Budget new regulations the stamp duty would be £32,000! They looked at one another, up to the ceiling and down to the floor, and—did not register."

In consequence of erroneous reports coming to this country from Sydney respecting the Wingello Coal Company, three of the directors petitioned for the winding up of the company. Mr. Justice Stirling ordered a general meeting to be held on 11th instant, to ascertain the wishes of the shareholders appointing an independent chairman. Mr. Henry Dever, of the firm of Messrs. Deloitte, Dever, Griffiths, and Co. The votes were 3049 for liquidation, and 10,466 against liquidation. Upon the report being handed to Mr. Justice Stirling yesterday, he dismissed the petition for liquidation without costs. The three petitioning directors consequently retire from the Board.

An important judgment has been delivered by the Court of Appeal in the case of The Almada and Tirito Company. The Judges held that shares issued at a discount were ultra vires, and void on the part of the company issuing. The very lengthy judgment shows that it can never be legal for a company to take a fraction of the nominal amount of its shares paid in cash as payment in full, and where such illegal issue is made, if the allottees are put on the register and remain there, they would, in the event of the winding-up of the company, be liable to pay the whole of the actual unpaid amount on their shares, but where allottees are placed on the register without themselves knowingly conniving at the illegality, they are entitled to have their names removed, and their money returned upon application to the court. This judgment will affect contractors and underwriters of public companies, who receive payment for their services for floating in the shape of large discounts off the price of the shares underwritten.

Wheat.—The imports into London for last week of English and foreign wheat and flour amount to 35,000 quarters and 55,330 sacks respectively. The shipments of wheat to the United Kingdom for the same period amount to 45,500 quarters, against 59,500 quarters for the previous week. The total wheat and flour on passage to the United Kingdom is 2,217,000 quarters, against 1,876,000 last year. The visible supply of wheat has decreased on the week 2,245,000 bushels, the quantities now being 29,272,000 bushels, as against 44,458,000 bushels in 1887 and 39,500,000 bushels in 1886. The market opened at Mark-lane on Monday 6d. dearer for English and foreign white wheats. Flour was held for 6d. advance, and a moderate business done. At the Baltic sale-rooms, owing to a further advance in America, floating cargoes in all positions were held for more money. The following transactions have taken place in Australian:—Trowbridge cargo sold at 33s. 6d.; 2000qr., February bill of lading iron, 32s. 9d.; 8000qr., 33s. 9d.; 3000qr., 33s. 9d.; 5500qr., 34s.; April-May bill of lading, 6000qr., June, 34s. 4½d. Price of Austra ian wheat to-day, ex store, is 35s. 6d. per 496lb; New Zealand Tuscan, 34s. to 34s. 6d.; short berry, 33s. to 33s. 6d.

Preserved Meats.—The particulars of the annual contract for the supply of beef and mutton to the English Navy has been published and caused some firmness in the market. Australian mutton has advanced ½d. per lb., but beef is without change.

Frozen Meat.—The Sydney mutton ex Austral and Iberia is selling at 2s. 5d. per stone, 3000 of the former cargo of 3960, and about 1800 of the latter shipment of 3420 carcases, are disposed of, balance expected to be cleared next week. New Zealand mutton selling at 2s. 6d. to 2s. 8d.; North Canterbury, 2s. 7d. to 2s. 9d.

Candles.—The present price of De Rouhaux Jenar's and De Rouhaux Oedenkoven's brands is 4 9-16d. per lb. for superfine stearine, 16 oz. There has been no change in price since 26th January, when an advance of 3-16d. per lb. took place, say from 4¼d. to above figure.

Metals.—Scotch pig iron has still further declined, business in warrants having been done as low as 37s. 9d. cash. Scotch shipping iron is equally dull, and prices a shade easier. Coltness, f.o.b. Glasgow, No. 1, 47s. 5d.; Gartsherrie, No. 1, 44s. 3d.; Summerlie, No. 1, 46s. 6d.; Clyde, No. 1, 43s. 6d.; Govan, No. 1, 38s. 9d. The stocks in Connal's stores again show an increase of 2546 tons on the week, and now amount to 980,459. The increase since 31st December last being 37,619 tons. Hematite iron is unaltered. Tin has fluctuated during the week from £88 down to-day's price for Straits and Australian, £84 10s. cash, £85 5s. three months. Copper shows some improvement. Business in Chili bars, g.o.b., has been done at £83 cash, declining to-day to £82 cash, and £75 10s. three months. Lead is dull. English pig, £12 7s. 6d.; Spanish, £12 5s.; spelter quiet, £16 10s. to £17, according to brand. Quicksilver, importers' price, £7 5s. per bottle; second hand, £6 15s.

Tallow.—At auction to-day, 841 casks of Australian offered, and only 256 casks sold. There was hardly any demand. Beef 6d. per cwt. down, and mutton quite unsaleable.

Wool.—Messrs. Windeler and Co. say since the close of the auctions on the 5th instant, although little colonial wool has changed hands here, the tone of the various wool markets has generally improved. With regard to our home centres this is not shown so much by any marked increase of business as by the firmer position taken up by holders of both merino and crossbred descriptions. English wools keep steady, stocks being light. Advice from the continent are certainly more favourable, Australian wools remain unchanged, but River Plate wools are in strong demand. The auctions of this class which opened at Antwerp on the 8th instant, have been marked throughout by an upward tendency and close to-day with an advance of about 5 per cent. on the opening and about 10 per cent. on the last sales in January, Germany, and Belgium being the chief operators. The American markets are quiet and stagnant for the time being.

Mother of Pearl shell and Tortoiseshell.—Third series of auctions this year took place on the 15th and 16th instant. Supply of all descriptions of white pearl was less than the previous auctions in March, but there was an unprecedented quantity of black-edged shells. The attendance of buyers was rather more than usual, competition was animated throughout, and the bulk was disposed of, black-edged especially exhibiting a great improvement in demand and realising an advance. For the Sydney and Western Australia prices were generally fairly maintained, excepting for the common and grubby, which were lower. Sydney: Bulk of the quantity offered sold with active competition; prices were most irregular, especially for the commoner and medium descriptions, which were lower, but really good were 5s. to 7s. 6d. per cwt. dearer; good to fine medium, £8 2s. 6d. to £8 15s. per cwt.; slightly mixed, £7 5s. to £7 12s. 6d. per cwt.; more grubby and yellow edged, £6 10s. to £7 2s. 6d per cwt.; bold, some medium, generally good, part slightly grubby, £7 to £7 15s. per cwt.; more mixed with grubby and yellow, £6 7s. 6d. to £7 per cwt.; generally grubby, part rather badly, £5 5s. to £6 per cwt.; common, defective, and grubby, 52s. 6d. to 80s. per cwt.; pieces, 92s. 6d. to £5 5s. per cwt.; chicken, good, £7 to £7 12s. 6d. per cwt.; common, £5 5s. to £5 15s. per cwt. Tortoiseshell.—Supply of all descriptions was rather in excess of March sales, being for all kinds 754cwt., against the bulk was disposed of, and steady prices ruled throughout with the exception of all West India qualities, which were rather in buyers' favour. Hoof was in rather better assortment, and sold readily and well. Sydney: Quite steady, sorts generally good colour, 10s. to 10s. 6d. per lb., more mixed with dull and red, 15s. per lb.; part defective, 13s. per lb.; hoof, 9s. per lb.

Apples.—560 boxes Tasmanian apples, ex steamer Iberia, were sold by Messrs. Keeling and Hunt, at their public auction, on 14th instant, bringing from 8s. 6d. to 22s. per box. The Napoleon pears brought 6s. to 11s. 6d. per box.

The Australian Wine Importers, Limited, report, under date May 17th, as follows:—"Competition continues very keen, but the demand keeps up, and no difficulty is found in placing really sound wines at values ranging from 5s. 3d. to 6s. 6d. A new trade mark infringement case is likely to be commenced shortly between two of the leading houses in this trade. The Iberia has arrived since our last with some 2000 gallons, bringing total since January 1st up to 77,000 gallons."

At the wharfs to-day moderate supplies were received, chiefly from the Hunter River and New Zealand, but additional shipments may be looked for on Monday. Business was of an unimportant character, and prices were unaltered. The wholesale quotations range as follows:—

WHAT are you laughing at, old man? Oh, nothing. I was just picturing a curious old lady who has become a great believer in this new drink, for she declares by all that she knows had she been able to procure it 50 years ago she would be a different lady now, although long over 70. If it makes her young again, what effect would it have upon a much younger patient? Delicate ladies, try Rowe's Dandelion Bitters after meals. See directions with each bottle.—(ADVT.)

NOTES EXPLANATORY OF MAP.

In the list of stations the column headed W.T., gives the state of the weather at 9 a.m., b standing for blue sky; c, detached clouds; d, drizzling rain; f, fog; g, gloomy; h, hazy; m, misty; s, frosty; o, overcast; p, passing showers; r, rain; s, snow; t, thunder; v, threatening. The next column, M'n. gives the maximum temperature for previous 24 hours. M'm the corresponding minimum temperature; R'n, the rain for the previous 24 hours. The symbols used in the map are explained on the margin. At each station the wind symbol points to the direction in which the wind is blowing, is in fact an arrow flying with the wind. A clear circle with it means fine weather; a circle with bar, cloudy weather, and a black spot, raining. Next to this symbol are placed figures denoting the number of miles the wind is moving per hour. Next, a symbol showing the state of the sea; and, lastly, figures denoting the shade temperature at 9 a.m. The barometer curve shows the state of barometers round the coast from Perth to Cooktown:—Pt, Perth; Ay, Albany; Ea, Eucla; CB, Cape Borda; A, Adelaide; Ro, Robe; P, Portland; M, Melbourne; WP, Wilson's Promontory; Go, Gabo; E, Eden; Ma, Moruya; CG, Jervis Bay; WG, Wollongong; S, Sydney; N, Newcastle; PM, Port Macquarie; C, Clarence River; B, Brisbane; R, Rockhampton; Ck, Cooktown. Inland, the state of barometer is given in figures at Albury, Deniliquin, Wentworth, Menindie, Bourke, and Alice Springs. The barometer curve enables one at a glance to trace the depressions, beginning with Western Australia, and passing along eastwards; northerly winds preceding them, and southerly following.

The rainfall on Sundays and holidays, when this map is not published, is included in the quantities shown by the next following map.

SYNOPSIS.

FOR SALE,
The OLD-ESTABLISHED and Profitable BUSINESS of SAMUEL DREW and CO., General Merchants, The Burra, South Australia; Broken Hill and Kurioupie, N.S.W.

The above business has been successfully conducted during the past 40 years (not one of which has shown a loss), and has supplied a very large number of sheep stations in South Australia, New South Wales, and Queensland with all requisites, and in consequence of the opening of the railway to the Barrier, is now capable of considerable extension.

The fact that each of the five (5) successive partners in this business has acquired a competency is a sufficient guarantee of its value.

The only reason for the present (5) partners wishing to retire is the increased attention necessitated by the growth of the business, and which they are not desirous of giving.

Terms of Disposal:
Stock at cost. This has been purchased for cash, and is nearly all new.
Premises at valuation.
Book debts at option of purchaser.
A bonus of £5000 for goodwill.

Books and Balance-sheets open to Principals only.

To thoroughly energetic, practical men such an opportunity rarely presents itself, as this is acknowledged to be the best paying country business conducted in South Australia.

Reference may be made to the National Bank of Australasia, Adelaide, Sydney, or Melbourne, for fuller particulars.

EXTENSIVE IMPORTANT SALE.

ESTATE of WILLIAM BROWN, Deceased.

CENTRAL CITY PROPERTIES.

ROWE-STREET, near PITT and KING STREETS, in two lots. — Between Pitt and Castlereagh streets, north of King-street, 79 7-12 FEET FRONTAGE, with side lane entrance adjoining the site of proposed magnificent hotel, said to eclipse all attempted hewtodore in our midst. On it are 5 small dwelling-houses.
Also, 161 FEET FRONTAGE on the other side of street, and having a side lane; the width at rear is 25½ft., depth at shortest 66½ft. On it is a house.

It is difficult to estimate the possibilities of value for this position; the central locality indicates that here may be the financial or professional offices required to keep pace with the enlarging vitality of business in our growing city.

CLARENCE-STREET. — Block of Land near Friend's Stores, south of Market-street, was tenanted by Mr. Wallee, blacksmith, 40ft by 74ft., next to Mr. Manley.

At this point large commercial stores are already fast establishing, and development of price and importance must ensue ere long.

SUSSEX-STREET, (west side). — LAND south of Bathurst-street, extending to a lane at rear. On it are 2 dwelling-houses, Nos. 303 and 305, substantial and useful. Rental, £136 10s. Land 36½ft. frontage, depth about 70ft., extending to lane.

These occupy a capital site in an active street or artery of our city, close to Darling Harbour Wharfs and Railway.

FRANCIS-STREET. — Hyde Park.—Excellent situation for letting houses. On it are three dwellings, Nos. 5, 5, and 7, built of brick on stone; two have each hall, 4 rooms, and kitchen, and the other has five rooms. Land 60ft. frontage, back to a passage, where width is narrower.

A most handy situation, practically in the city, and approached by the pleasant healthy Hyde Park.

MOORE PARK, and SURRY HILLS. — MAGNIFICENT AREA of LAND, known as Wimbledon Hall and Grounds, with large frontage to DOWLING-STREET, MOORE PARK, BOURKE-STREET, SURRY HILLS, on which is the old family homestead, now occupied by Mr. Goldie, of Sydney Grammar School. Most suitable for subdivision and ready sale, AREA, 2 ACRES 26 PERCHES.

The frontage to DOWLING-STREET is 160ft., and the same to BOURKE-STREET, the depth through being about 600ft. The charming situation of this is so self-evident that comment is deemed unnecessary. A combination of profitable uses could be found for it, while to the speculator it affords a ready chance of easy subdivision.

KING-STREET, Newtown.—Corner of Nelson-street, 40ft. to main road by depth of 170ft. On it are four buildings, returning £104 yearly, as an estimate.

For a BANK or trade premises this is an excellent block, as around is an enlarging neighbourhood by reason of various allotments being built upon.

KEY POSITION in BURWOOD. — Unrivalled corner Block of Land, almost at the station, on the throng or business side of railway line, with large frontages to Burwood-road and Railway-crescent. On it are some slight or temporary wooden tenements.
TO BE SUBDIVIDED,
as follows.
BURWOOD-ROAD.
Lot 1, 40ft. (CORNER) x 100ft. extending back to lane
Lots 2 to 4, each, 18ft. x 100ft. ditto
Lot 5, 40ft. x 100ft. ditto
Lots 6 to 9, each 18ft. x 100ft. ditto
Lots 10 and 11, each 40ft. Railway Crescent x 200ft.

BANKS, HOTELKEEPERS, and Others, also, SHOPKEEPERS should not neglect this unusual opportunity of acquiring one or more lots for the erection of BUSINESS PREMISES
as this thoroughfare is marvellously active, and a large attractive class of trade is conducted at this place, constantly extending from settlement:—

PARRAMATTA. — Allotment of Land, No. 28 of section 2, on north side of Campbell-street, having about 54 feet frontage, by a depth on one side of 156 feet. This is convenient to station and town.

In terms of the Will these properties have to be sold under the hammer, and therefore a bona-fide opportunity is offered to
CAPITALISTS, INVESTORS,
SPECULATORS, or BUILDING SOCIETIES, to acquire the position of their choice, for all these lots occupy in their respective localities first-class
from which very large prospective enhancement in values or profit may be expected to accrue to the purchasers at this sale.
